Greeks Occupy New Series Of Albanian Heights

Infantry Units Reach Frontier Two Miles North-East of Koritza

Athens, Nov. 14.

AFTER successful attacks in the Pindus region Greek troops occupied a new series of heights on Albanian soil, it is reported here. A Greek High Command communique says the heights were occupied after a stiff fight.

Military quarters add that in the Pindus sector, Greek infantry have reached the frontier about two miles north-east of Koritza, and operations are continuing. In the Epirus sector, the Greeks are advancing and are now forward of Mazarakia, which is about three-quarters way up the Kalamas river from the Akaron river. In the northern sector, there is nothing to report, but it is rumoured that there are more Italian troops in this region.—Reuter.

Salonika, Nov. 14.

Both Italian Alpine columns numbering several thousand troops were reported today to be wandering aimlessly through the mountains and valleys of the Pindus region constantly harassed by "mopping up" patrols of Greek troops. The Greeks were reported to be in complete control of the mountain region.

As far as the Greeks were concerned, the main Italian drive in the Pindus area had been circumvented by a series of encircling operations and retreat for the Italian troops was said to be blocked.—Reports from the front indicated that hundreds of Italians were falling into Greek hands daily.—United Press.

All Driven Out

Sofia, Nov. 14.

Italian troops have been driven out of all Greek territory occupied by them at the beginning of hostilities, Greek Legation officials in Sofia said today in a summary of the progress made during the first phase of the Italian-Greek conflict. The summary was issued to coincide with the appointment of a new Italian commander-in-chief on the Greek front.

Greek Legation officials stated that the Greek Army, consisting of only eight divisions, opposed Italian forces amounting to nine divisions with more than ordinary artillery complements, and 250 tanks.

In the foremost ranks of the Italian onslaught were the elite Third Alpine Division of the Italian Army, which was supported by artillery, cavalry, and Albanian battalions coordinating with "crack" Blackshirt units.

Athens charged that Italian troops "pillaged and burned Samarina and Kerassovo." The summary said that the Italians, attacking at 5.50 a.m. on October 28, reached Samarina, and came within twenty kilometres of Metzovo. A terrifying Greek counter-attack, however, was said to have resulted in a "catastrophic dispersal and dissolution of the enemy."

"It became a general rout with the Italians abandoning their arms, ammunition, and wounded, and weeping prisoners giving themselves up," it was claimed.

The Italians had planned the occupation of Greece in full detail with "a revolution supposed to break out in Athens as soon as the news of the invasion had been announced," the summary said.

"The Italian Minister to Greece was given precise instructions, while it was assumed half of Greece was Italophile, and the remainder Republican," Greek Legation officials in Sofia stated.—United Press.

Greek, British Planes Active

Athens, Nov. 14.

Greek and British aeroplanes continue to hammer ports in Italy and Albania as Greek land forces score more successes, a communique said yesterday.

Four hundred Italian prisoners of war arrived in Athens by truck yesterday as a division of Greek volunteers arrived from Egypt to fight for their country.

The Greek air force bombed Koritza and destroyed several Italian planes on the ground. One Italian bomber was shot down in combat, the communique added.

Italian planes bombed Argostolion on the island of Kiphallinia (Cephalonia) opposite Patras, it was reported in the communique.

The island of Levkas and several villages in Thessalonia also were bombed by Italian planes, the communique said. A few persons were killed and several were wounded.

Greeks continued their advance in the Pindus mountains, and the charred wreckage of an Italian plane was found near the Ionian sea.

British bombers carried out long range operations against Bari Delle Puglie, Italian port on the Adriatic sea and again raided Durazzo, Albania's number one port and second largest town, on November 13.

M. Molotov's First Air Raid

New York, Nov. 14.

The Royal Air Force attacked Berlin last night while M. Viacheslav Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, was entertaining Nazi officials, according to despatches received.

German officials described the raid as "a deliberate attempt" to disturb the banquet which had been arranged, these reports say. M. Molotov's guests were forced to stay at the Soviet Embassy until the "all clear" was sounded, early in the morning. This was M. Molotov's first experience of an actual air-raid.—Reuter.

Greeks Repulsed Italians Report

Communique Admits Raid On Durazzo; "Successes" on E. African Front Claimed

Rome, Nov. 14.

Greece has only 150 war planes and urgently has asked England to rush planes and coastal batteries, an official radio announcement said here today.

Italian troops have repulsed Greek attacks on Italian positions in the Epirus sector and in turn have bombed Greek positions in the Pindus mountains and other zones, said the official communique issued yesterday.

The communique admitted that Greek planes have raided Durazzo and caused a number of deaths and injuries by aerial bombardment. One Greek plane "probably" was shot down, the communique said.

Italian successes were reported on the East African front where British forces left 50 dead after a skirmish, the communique said.

Italians also captured machine guns, rifles, and munitions the communique said.

Italian planes bombed military objectives in north Africa as well as the Suez canal and aerodromes at Cairo, said the communique.—United Press.

50 Italian Prisoners

London, Nov. 14.

It is learned in London that operations are still continuing in both Kassala and Gallabat areas in Africa, and that 50 more prisoners have been taken in the Gallabat region.—Reuter.

Italian Camp Shelled

London, Nov. 14.

Munition stores at camp Metemma, near Gallabat, were set on fire by a British artillery bombardment, military authorities said here yesterday.

Shelling of the camp was carried out after British forces recaptured Gallabat and Italian forces withdrew to Metemma, one or two miles away, authorities said.

The munition stores being assembled at Metemma were intended to be used for, invading the Sudan, said military authorities.—United Press.

Taranto and Berlin Get No Respite

Molotov Sees Evidence Of British Air Power

London, Nov. 14.

Following up the glorious Fleet Air Arm's feat of crippling major units of the Italian Fleet at Taranto, Royal Air Force planes last night again successfully raided the Italian naval base, the Air Ministry announced today.

R.A.F. bombers successfully attacked docks and the harbour of Taranto during the night, the Air Ministry said. Taranto, important Italian naval base in the "instep" of Italy's "boot," thus has been bombed by both naval and military planes.

British bombers soared over Berlin and released bombs on some military objectives in the Reich capital in the course of operations which took them to various parts of Germany last night, the Air Ministry said today.

A number of military objectives were made the targets of the raids on Germany, the communique said.

Coincidental with the crippling of the main units of the Italian fleet by the British Fleet's Air Arm on Monday night and Tuesday morning, Royal Air Force planes continued battering attacks on Lorient. This German occupied port in France is believed to be Germany's main base for submarine raids against British shipping convoys in the Atlantic.

Sumarine Base Attacked

Worthy of note was the fact that during the past few days the R.A.F. has almost continuously bombed Lorient, indicating an effort to blast German submarines out of the bay of Biscay. Tons of heavy explosive bombs have been dumped on the Lorient waterfront where German submarines appeared to be concentrated.

Since September 1 18 raids have been carried out against Lorient by the R.A.F. Severe damage was said to be inflicted on the port in earlier raids despite one of the strongest concentrations of anti-aircraft batteries yet encountered by British pilots.

Reports from the English Channel coast last night said that heavy explosions had been heard throughout the afternoon from the direction of the French coast. R.A.F. bombers were believed to have sprung a surprise daylight attack on German invasion bases.

The R.A.F. planes could be heard bombing the French coast a few hours after Messerschmitt fighter planes, carrying one bomb each, carried out a dive bomb attack on two south-west coast English towns. Four civilians were killed in one town before one of the German planes was shot down.

Later large British guns along the coast fired several salvoes across the straits into German positions. The British coast shook from the concussion of the heavy guns.

The Air Ministry meanwhile issued a communique announcing that the bomber command on Tuesday night attacked German oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Cologne and the inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrot. Railway centres and factories in the Ruhr district and near Cologne also were blasted by British bombs, the communique said.

British bombers on Tuesday night also raided Lorient and the docks at Flushing and Dunkirk, the communique added. Several German aerodromes also were bombed, it was said. British losses were put at only one plane missing.—United Press.

Quiet Reigns Over England

Only Few Enemy Aircraft Over; Damage Small

London, Nov. 14.

Only a few enemy aircraft ventured over England last night and those that did appear created little havoc, the Air Ministry communique said today. Enemy raiders "dropped bombs on one district in the London area and on some places in south-east England," the communique declared.

The Air Ministry said that the enemy also dropped explosives "on a town in East Anglia and on the London area and damaged a few houses. The only casualties reported were a small number of persons injured."

Quiet reigned in London early today after a brief night air attack which followed a fierce daylight aerial battle over the channel.

Only a few bombs were dropped in the London area last night, the German raiders apparently having spent their strength trying to attack a town on the south-east coast.

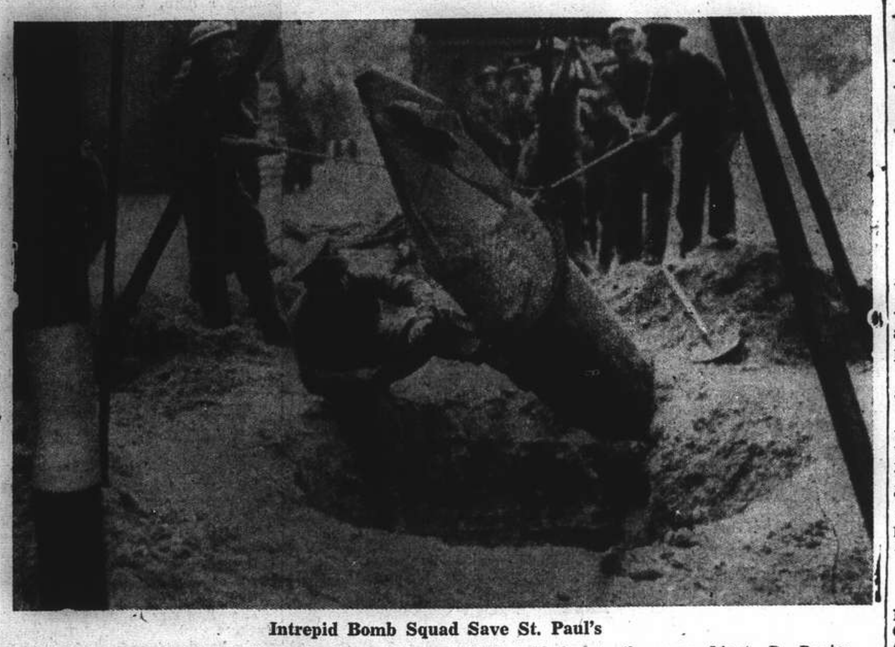
Large squadrons of Hurricanes and Messerschmitts battled over the channel yesterday afternoon after the Germans had attempted a fierce dive bombing attack on the coastal town.

British Hurricane fighters intercepted the raiders and finally drove them over the channel. Long bursts of machine-gun fire were heard. Other raiders joined the battle.

Planes were seen climbing and diving over the channel in fierce combat. Additional British planes swept out over the cliffs and joined the fray in an attempt to cut off the German attack.

Rescue workers this morning frantically were tunnelling into a public air raid shelter demolished by a direct bomb hit.

Eighty women and children were in the shelter.—United Press.



Intrepid Bomb Squad Save St. Paul's

While men of the Royal Engineers Bomb Disposal Unit hold fast to the ropes, Lieut. R. Another Italian Disaster Caused by British Navy

Light Naval Forces Successfully Attack Convoy on Same Night as Taranto Raid

London, Nov. 14.

ON the same night that aeroplanes of the British Fleet Air Arm carried out a daring and highly successful raid on the Italian naval base at Taranto, as a result of which Mussolini's fleet strength was reduced by three battleships, two cruisers and auxiliary vessels, British naval light forces wreaked havoc on an Italian convoy in the Straits of Otranto, the Admiralty announced yesterday.

One Italian supply ship was sunk, two others were set on fire and probably sank and a fourth was damaged but escaped behind a smoke screen, the Admiralty said.

Two Italian destroyers escorting the convoy also escaped, although one was hit by British shells, said the Admiralty. No British casualties were suffered, the Admiralty said.

The Admiralty said the British Mediterranean fleet also continued to harass Italian communications in Libya.

A successful bombardment was carried out against Sidi Barrani on the night of November 10, the Admiralty announced.

Italian shore batteries returned fire but the British ships escaped undamaged and without suffering casualties, the Admiralty said.

A British submarine also recently attracked an Italian convoy of two ships, escorted by a destroyer. One of the supply ships, of about 3,000 tons was sunk and the other was damaged and probably sank, the Admiralty said:

Location of the submarine attack was not given.—United Press.

U.S. Press Lauds Taranto Exploit

New York Papers Foresee Far-Reaching Effects of British Action

New York, Nov. 14.

"The crippling of Italy's fleet is a blow that will be heard round the world," declares the "New York Times," commenting on the action at Taranto.

"It must be galling to Mussolini," the newspaper adds, to see his proudest battleships disabled, his crack regiments decimated in Greece and his supply ships and transports sunk on his very doorstep.

"The spirit of Nelson and Drake is awake again. It cannot fail to bring new confidence to the British people in their ultimate triumph over the enemy."

The "New York Herald Tribune" says the thunder of bombs at Taranto harbour will echo around the Mediterranean and over the Atlantic. "It will be heard in far away Tokyo, while it will reverberate in all Balkan capitals. It will penetrate the massive walls of the Kremlin and reach even into the marble splendours of Hitler's chancellery.

"Here," the "Herald Tribune" continues "is a success magnificent in its dash and spectacular in its proportions. The effects of Taranto may well be tremendous. It will raise British prestige immensely in Turkey and the Balkans, it is likely to confirm General Franco in his hesitations, and should strengthen the free French forces throughout Africa."—Reuter.

Power Balance Changed

London, Nov. 14.

Not only the situation in the Mediterranean had been transformed by a single swift naval action, but the balance of sea power throughout the oceans of the world had been decisively altered, declared the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. A. V. Alexander, in a broadcast.

The Italian battle fleet's numerical superiority, he said, had been reduced to inferiority. Here was fulfilment of the pledge made to Greece. Mr. Alexander declared that the action would depress boastful Mussolini, who must now know that he was going to be beaten.—Reuter.

Egypt's Premier Dies In Parliament

Cairo, Nov. 14.

Damage at Taranto Revealed

One Battleship Badly Disabled, One Badly Damaged

London, Nov. 14.

"It is now definitely ascertained that as a result of the raid on Taranto Harbour one enemy battleship was seriously disabled and another was badly damaged," states an R.A.F. communique issued in Cairo Wednesday.

Further fine work by the R.A.F. in the Near and Middle East is summarized in the communique, which states: "Following highly successful raids on Durazzo in the night of November 11, during which a fuel depot was completely destroyed and much damage caused, R.A.F. bombers again raided this Italian port yesterday. Bombs burst on quays, among cranes and warehouses, on and around a power station to the south-west of the town, causing large fires with dense columns of smoke. Photographic reconnaissance also was made over Durazzo.

"In Italian East Africa Bahardar (Lake Tana) was raided and as a result of a dive attack two large fires were started on wharves which were still burning an hour later. At Zula an enemy flying boat was machine-gunned at its mooring and sunk. A ship at Harmil Island was bombed and machine-gunned and other military objectives attacked.

"At Aroza, north of Lake Tana, an aerodrome was raided and all bombs fell well within the target area. The enemy attempted a raid on Malta on Monday but the formation was broken up by accurate anti-aircraft fire. Our fighters engaged the enemy and one Macchi 200 was shot down into the sea, the pilot being killed."

Congratulations On Victory

The following message has been sent, states an Air Ministry communique, by the Chief of the Air Staff, Sir Charles Portal, to the First Sea Lord concerning the victorious action of the Fleet Air Arm against the Italian Fleet at Taranto: "Heartiest congratulations on the successful raid on Taranto by the fleet air arm, A magnificent show."—Reuter.

Britain Creates Unified Far Eastern Command

Appointment of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke Popham as G.O.C. Announced

London, Nov. 14.

BRITAIN last night appeared to be preparing to meet threats of further Japanese expansion in southern Asia which might threaten Singapore, Burma and the Netherlands East Indies. The British Government announced creation of a unified Far Eastern command under the supreme command of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke Popham.

British officials at the same time disclosed that "further reinforcements" had already reached the area into which Japan is threatening a southward drive, according to reports from the Far East.

These reports said the Japanese were believed to be on the verge of another southward thrust with their immediate objective being Saigon.

The Japanese southward thrust, some reports predicted, would be made to coincide with the possible announcement of a Russo-Japanese rapprochement in Berlin this week.

Alarming Reports

Japanese forces were reported to have been heavily concentrated in Formosa, Hainan Island, and Kwangchowan where transports were said to be waiting to carry them southward, probably to Saigon.

Reports from the Orient said there was every indication that a Japanese thrust into Saigon would be only the beginning of major Japanese expansion in southern Asia. The Japanese were even reported to be withdrawing troops from ports along the Yangtze River to reinforce the units poised to strike southward.

Observers here attached importance to the comment yesterday of the newspaper "Sin Shun Pao," Japanese Army organ in Shanghai, which said that Japan would not permit the China war to detract her from her objectives "in the south Pacific and the Indian Ocean."

Evidence that Japan is on the verge of another southward thrust was seen by some circles in the inspired reports issued recently by semi-official Japanese news organs. Japanese reports, it was pointed out, alleged that anti-Japanese and pro-de Gaulle sentiment was spreading in French Indo-China, particularly around Saigon.

Japanese reports also have accused the French of maltreating the Indo-China natives and twice alleged that the French Governor-General of Indo-China, Vice Admiral Jean Decoux, had resigned his post.

In both instances, it was pointed out, Hanoi authorities denied that Admiral Decoux had any intention of resigning. Some observers here regarded false reports of Admiral Decoux' resignation as a possible indication that he was resisting new Japanese demands for naval and air bases in southern Indo-China.

Reports from Bangkok yesterday indicated that Thailand was concentrating heavy forces along the Indo-China frontier and appeared to be making preparations to cross the border about December 1, possibly to establish a junction with Japanese forces operating from southern Indo-China. Such action, it was pointed out, might enable the Japanese to out-flank Singapore and establish bases on the Indian Ocean as hinted by the "Sin Shun Pao" in Shanghai.—United Press.

Italian Navy May Come Out of "Funk Holes"

Sig. Gayda Asserts Fleet To Play Big Part in War

Rome, Nov. 14.,

Sig. Virginio Gayda, Premier Mussolini's asserted official mouthpiece, said in the "Giornale d'Italia" today that Italy's navy must not only expect to bear the full weight of Britain's naval offensives in the Mediterranean, but also cooperate with German efforts in the North Atlantic. Sig. Gayda continued that Italy alone must stand off the Anglo-Greek fleet in the southern field of operations.

The Italian spokesman emphasized that the war will probably be of long duration because of England's far flung possessions all over the world.

"Italy has become a decisive factor in the Axis war against the greatest world Power's most efficient armed forces on land, sea and in the air, as well as in colonial operations," the editorial concluded.—United Press.

Rumania Demobilizes

Egypt's Attitude Dictated by Prudence Says King Farouk, Opening Parliament

Treaty of Alliance with Great Britain Executed With Complete Sincerity, Young Ruler Stresses

Cairo, Nov. 14.

In the present world situation Egypt has adopted an attitude dictated by prudence, imposed by wisdom and dominated by a desire to assure her safety and to fulfil her obligations, declared King Farouk opening the first Egyptian Parliament since Italy's entry into the war.

At the same time, he added, she has sought, wherever the war has not had repercussions, to maintain ties of serene friendship with other Powers. The speech was one of the shortest ever read from the Throne in the Egyptian Parliament.

The opening of Parliament today was accompanied by the traditional pageantry. The King drove in state along streets lined with Egyptian soldiers and police, and filled with cheering crowds. Many British and Dominion troops watched the procession.

In his speech King Farouk declared that Egypt had "executed a treaty of alliance with Britain with complete sincerity both in the letter and the spirit."

March of Events

Egypt, he continued, "is following the march of events vigilantly, confident in herself and sure of her ally. Jealous of her sovereignty and independence she is ready to face danger, and will strive, whatever may be the turn of international conditions, to conserve her security and maintain her integrity.

"This policy which you recommended at the last session, and which accords with the will of the nation, is the same which my Government has chosen, in the hope that it will produce the best result and, that, thereby, Egypt will be able to realise all her desires."—Reuter.

Molotov Played Out of Berlin by Brass Bands

German Communique Throws No Light on Nature of Talks With Reich Leaders; "World Coalition Against Britain"

Berlin, Nov. 14.

M. VIACHESLAV Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, departed for Moscow from the Anhalter Station at 11.06 a.m. today amid a blare of brass bands while high German military and political leaders looked on after bidding him farewell.

The Soviet statesman departed after a two-day visit to Berlin and after two conferences with Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Despite the departure of M. Molotov, no communique was issued which would throw light on the exact subjects discussed between the Soviet Foreign Commissar and the Fuhrer. The only communique issued, and which stated that it had been approved by both the Soviet and German Governments, declared:

"Exchange of Views"

"During his stay in Berlin on November 12 and November 13 the Chairman of the Council of Peoples Commissars and the Foreign Commissar of the U.S.S.R. Viacheslav M. Molotov, conferred with the Fuhrer and the Reich Foreign Minister.

"An exchange of views took place in an atmosphere of mutual confidence and led to mutual understanding on all important questions of interest to Germany and the Soviet Union."

While nothing was revealed in the communique, the length of the Soviet Premier's conferences with the Fuhrer and Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, Foreign Minister, was regarded as an indication, however, that the problems under discussion were examined in considerable detail.

"World Coalition"

Among them, according to such little indications as were available, was probably the possibility of the creation of what the "Essener National Zeitung" described as a "world coalition" against the British Empire, with Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan playing the dominant roles.

The same cordiality which marked the conferences between M. Molotov and all German leaders, including Marshall Hermann Goering, Air Minister, and Herr Rudolf Hess, the Fuhrer's Deputy, prevailed at the Anhalter Station when the Russian statesman prepared to depart.

Herr von Ribbentrop, who officially greeted M. Molotov on Tuesday also officially bade farewell to him today, concluding a historic event the importance of which may soon be realized.

It was the first time that M. Molotov had left Russian soil for a diplomatic mission and also constituted a return trip to the two visits made to Moscow by Herr von Ribbentrop.

Scene at Station

Arriving in the same automobile, M. Molotov and Herr von Ribbentrop joined Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of Staff of the High Command, Herr Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Gestapo, and Commissioner Curt Daluege, commander of the Prussian police, and took the salute from a guard of honour.

A brass band played as M. Molotov shook hands with the high German military and political officials, after which he and Herr von Ribbentrop stepped toward the train.

They talked for a few minutes and as the train began to move, they once more shook hands cordially and M. Molotov stepped aboard. The train drew out of the station decorated with Russo-German flags to the strains of the brass band.

M. Viacheslav Molotov yesterday completed his discussions with German government officials, said DNB the official German news agency. M. Molotov had a farewell interview of several hours with Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, DNB said. Sirens sounded during a farewell reception for M Molotov in the Soviet Embassy. DNB said.

The Soviet Foreign Commissar visited the Chancellory for four hours yesterday, three hours of which were devoted to conferences.—United Press.

Vital Interests of Germany, Russia

Bucharest, Nov. 14.

The visits of Russia's Foreign Commissar and Rumania's Premier and War Minister to Berlin and Rome respectively, are related, the "Bukarester Tageblatt," official German organ here, said yesterday.

The newspaper remarked that although the visit of M. Viacheslav Molotov to Berlin and General Jon Antonescu to Rome were merely coincidental they are related "because they are concerned with organization not only of Europe but of the world."

Germany is eager to include Russia in the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact, said "Curentul," the official organ of the Iron Guard.

"Curentul" said M. Molotov's visit to Berlin was to discusss, firstly, mutual regard for vital interests of Germany and Russia, secondly, removal of all possible reasons for conflict and thirdly, cooperation in the settlement of all new problems.

The Berlin correspondent of "Universul," another Bucharest newspaper, said no pact will be signed in Berlin.—United Press.

Bremen Said Lying At Bottom of Kattegat

Superstructure Visible To Sightseers

San Francisco, Nov. 14.

The ss. Bremen, Germany's greatest luxury liner, which was said to have been turned into a troop transport, was sunk off northern Denmark, the Danish-Norwegian newspaper "Bien" said here yesterday. The Bremen apparently was sunk by a torpedo and now lies at the bottom of the Kattegat, four miles off the coast of northern Denmark, according to unconfirmed advices to editors of the San Francisco newspaper.

Hundreds of excursionists pay 25 cents each to be ferried out to the scene of the sinking and gaze at the Bremen's super-structure which rises above the sea, the reports said.

"Hundreds of bodies are floating in the Oresund" in the vicinity of the ship said one letter to the newspaper.

The letters recalled unconfirmed rumours that the Bremen was sunk while carrying 15,000 troops.—United Press.

Three More Earthquake Shocks Rock Bucharest as People Sleep Outdoors

Poisonous Gas Stops Rescue Work on Demolished Carlton Apartment; All Cinemas Closed

Bucharest, Nov. 14.

Three light, intermittent earth shocks felt here during the past 24 hours alarmed residents of the Rumanian capital last night after rescue work on the ruins of the Carlton apartment house had been suspended because of fire and poisonous gas.

Many persons again spent the night in the streets or in parks rather than risk having their already damaged homes shaken down upon them in the night.

The Bucharest Opera House and many theatres are among the hundreds of buildings which have been condemned by Rumanian authorities this week because of damage suffered in the two major earthquakes last Sunday.

All cinemas here have been closed, regardless of their condition, pending further orders from the Government. Well-known buildings damaged include the National Theatre, the entire gallery of which collapsed.

Rescue workers at the Carlton apartment house, in which as many as 400 persons may have perished, suspended work yesterday after poisonous gas began pouring from the ruins of the building. Firemen, equipped with gas masks, continued efforts to bring the burning debris under control.

Ninety-eight bodies recovered thus far from the Carlton Apartment house, bring the total known earthquake dead throughout the Rumania to 357.—United Press.

U.S. Banker Warns Japanese

Following a "Disastrous Course"; Britain Seen as Pivot of U.S. Security

New York, Nov. 14.

Mr. Thomas Lamont, prominent American banker, warned Japan last night that she is following a "disastrous course" as a result of political changes in the past ten years aimed at military conquest. He emphasized, however, that it was still not too late for Japan to change her course and seek to pursue a policy of peace.

Mr. Lamont, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which has heavy investments in Japan, said he spoke as Japan's friend but that world conditions made it necessary to take a realistic attitude toward present world events.

Addressing the Academy of Political Science, Mr. Lamont said the Japanese people do not want war with the United States. He pointed out to the Japanese that their war in China had absorbed vast sums of Japanese capital, creating soaring taxes and dwindling gold supplies in Japan.

Aid to England Advocated

Mr. Lamont, who is also a director in the United States Steel Corporation, said the United States should continue its aid to the Chungking Government in its war of resistance against Japanese invasion. He also advocated American aid to England.

"We should realize that as long as Britain holds out," he said, "Japan does not dare to attempt much. British resistance, on the one hand, and at the same time maintenance of British control of the Atlantic, become the pivot of American security on both sides of the Western Hemisphere.

"Therefore, constantly increasing material aid to Britain is the number one route whereby Japan's threat to America can be rendered null and void."

Mr. Lamont urged the American Government to clarify its Far Eastern policy. He said the American business world was prepared to follow this policy, once it is sufficiently defined.

The welfare of the Netherlands East Indies and Singapore deeply concerns the United States, Mr. Lamont said.

The Worst of the Bargain

Referring to the Tripartite Pact, he said that "Japan got the worst of her bargain with Germany, so it is high time that Japan should have some regard for her diminishing financial strength."

"Before Japan's economy meets with disaster," he continued, "she should turn back from the inevitable road to ruin. Japan must abandon once and for all in the Far East the Nazi theory of racial superiority and the idea of a new order in East Asia. She must realize that China is bound to become free and independent and that she has a great destiny before her. Japan also should realize that China wants friendship and not enmity from her aggressive neighbour."

Mr. Lamont said it was his desire to see Japanese-American cooperation in the Pacific based on friendship.

For Japan Mr. Lamont advised a cautious policy which he said should not be misinterpreted as appeasement. He said China is "invincibly determined" to drive Japan out of China. Consequently, he said, China deserves more material aid from the United States.—United Press.

Hero Ship in Naval Epic

The ss. Jervis Bay, the armed merchant cruiser which sacrificed itself to save a large convoy in the Atlantic and was sunk by a German surface raider. She was one of a fleet of five vessels of her class ordered by the Hughes Government towards the end of the last war. All of them were built as auxiliary cruisers, but by the time they had been delivered, the war was over, and they were put into service as regular passenger-cargo vessels, and, owing to their immense refrigeration facilities, contributed greatly towards the expansion of the Australian meat industry. They were run at a heavy loss, however, and in 1925/26 were sold to the Aberdeen and Commonwealth line, a subsidiary of the White Star line, at about a quarter of their original cost, on the condition that they would not be resold to any power likely to become a threat to Britain. The Jervis Bay was built to carry two six inch and two four inch guns.

Miss Vicki Baum, who wrote the unforgettable "Grand Hotel" several years ago, was responsible for another entertaining story which, interpreted on the screen, turned out to be a very pleasing film fare, possessing a little of comedy, drama and music. This film, "Dance, Girl, Dance" opened at the Nanking Theatre yesterday and presented Miss Maureen O'Hara in her first modern role. Miss O'Hara, who scored such a success in her first two pictures, was perfectly at home in the role of a young woman craving for a ballet career, although the first half of the film gave her little scope to demonstrate her abilities. The latter part of the show, however, showed why this little Irish miss became a favourite overnight, when she scored with her delightful acting, stealing every scene she appeared in. The next best performance was that of Miss Lucille Ball, cast as a cheap little gold-digger, out to get all the men she can. Her dancing and singing were good, while her repartees reminded one of Miss Mae West, so close was the resemblance in the roles played by these two actresses. Miss Maria Ouspenskaya, the old lady of the stage, performed wonderfully as the old, lovable ballet teacher, and it was a pity that she had to die so early in the picture. It is rarely that one sees such refined acting on the screen. The leading male role was in the hands of Mr. Louis ("My Son") Hayward, cast as a rich young man, out to forget his divorce from his wife. He suffers and drinks throughout the picture, but the end finds him together with his ex-wife, out to start their quarrels anew. The other male role was taken by Mr. Ralph Bellamy and although he does not play a romantic role, one feels that he is the man our heroine will marry after all.

The main feature is preceded by only one short, "March of Time," and this as ever proves to be very entertaining, this time dealing with "Uncle Sam—the Farmer."—T.M.

"Down Went McGinty"

A pleasant surprise is in store for those planning to see "Down Went McGinty" at the Cathay Theatre. This picture seems to have slipped into town quietly with little advance publicity but it is practically perfect. Unpretentious in cast, it does what it tries to do with remarkable precision making every line and every scene click. There are just three characters, with the other people in the show appropriately blurred into the environment. First there is McGinty, who is very hard-boiled; there is "the boss" who is just as hardboiled; and there is McGinty's wife who wants to stamp out slums, sweat-shops, and child labour. The naturally formidable Brian Donlevy, under the expert direction of Preston Sturges who also wrote the story, is an unforgettable character as McGinty with his stiff-necked refusal to concede anything to anybody. A player of minor roles for a long time, Donlevy seems destined to get top billing hereafter. From a destitute frequenter of soup-kitchens in this picture, he rises gradually to the position of state governor with graft as his chief preoccupation. All goes comfortably for McGinty so long as he follows his cynical instincts, but eventually the reforming drive by his wife succeeds and, turned pure, he goes first to jail and then into exile in some remote spot. Akim Tamiroff as the racketeer who elevates McGinty only to be "triple-crossed" as he puts it, is better than ever. An overwhelming egotist, he seems bewildered that anyone will stand up to him and even look down on him and appears finally to decide that it is a joke worth preserving. McGinty's wife is played with great ability by Muriel Angelus who turns idealistic in the latter stages to the ruin of her husband's career. Nicety of direction is felt in every scene and the result is a tough and yet rather wistful atmosphere which never losses its tang.

Only 65 Men of Gallant Crew Of ss. Jervis Bay Saved

Survivors Landed in Canada; None Seriously Injured; Convoy Survivors Arrive in Newfoundland

London, Nov. 14.

ONLY 65 members of the gallant crew of the Jervis Bay, armed merchant cruiser which succeeded in saving the majority of a British convoy from being sunk by a German warship in the Atlantic, have survived.

That number has been landed in Canada and none are seriously injured. Owing to deterioration in the weather, it is considered unlikely that any more will be saved.

An official communique recalls in restrained language the story of the action and discloses that the Jervis Bay was hit early in the battle and, although partly out of control and on fire, continued to take a pounding from enemy guns for an hour in pursuance of the Captain's intention to draw the enemy's fire away from the ships in the convoy while the latter dispersed.

She sank about three hours after the enemy was first sighted.

Six more ships of the convoy have reached port safely, states an Admiralty communique. They are the St. Gobain, Stureholm, Cetus, Trefusis, Puck, and Sovac.—Reuter.

90 Survivors Landed

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Nov. 14.

Ninety survivors of the four ships, which were sunk by a Nazi surface raider in the Atlantic recently, arrived here yesterday.

They were found drifting in lifeboats some 36 hours after the ships had sank. Most of them were very sparsely clad and they said that they had had a wretched time "in heavy weather."—Reuter.

"The new Commander-in-Chief will consult and co-operate with naval Commanders-in-Chief in China and the East Indies and with the Commander-in-Chief in India. It will also be his duty to maintain close touch with the Governors of Burma and the colonies concerned and communicate with his Majesty's Government in the Commonwealth of Australia and New Zealand on all matters of interest to them. He will also be responsible for keeping touch in defence matters with his Majesty's representatives in foreign countries in or concerned with the Far East.

To Take Post Soon

"Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham has been selected for this appointment and will very shortly assume his duty at headquarters in Singapore."

The Commander-in-Chief's staff will be a combined staff of different services and thus will ensure complete coordination and interdependence of activities. The chief of this combined staff will be Major-General R. H. Dewing.

Further reinforcements having already reached the Far East, these arrangements are of the greatest importance, it is stated in informed quarters.

Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, first holder of the newly created Far East command, started his service career as a soldier, being gazetted for the Oxford Light Infantry, with which regiment he served until 1912, when he joined the ancestor of the R.A.F —the Air Battalion of the Royal Engineers.

Distinguished Career

He has proved himself both as a commander in the field and as an administrator. Holder of many decorations for gallantry, he also has been the first commandant of the R.A.F. Staff College, Air Officer Commanding in Iraq and Air Officer Commander-in-Chief for air defence of Britain. In 1937 he was appointed Governor-General of Kenya but rejoining the active list after the outbreak of war went to Canada as chief R.A.F. member of the British air mission.

Sir Robert Brooke-Popham is 62 years old. He was educated at Haileybury, Sandhurst and the Staff College. He entered the Army in 1898 and was promoted to captain in 1904, major in 1915. He was Commandant of the R.A.F. Staff College from 1921 to 1926 Air Officer Commanding Fighting Area Air Defences of Great Britain in 1926-28, Commandant of the Imperial Defence College in 1931-33. He was Principal Air A.D.C. to the King in 1933-37, Inspector-General of the Royal Air Force in 1935-36.—Reuter.

Emperor Approves Grew's Speech

Reference to Well-Being, Culture Bring Response At Tokyo Banquet

Tokyo, Nov. 12.

Persons in position to observe the Emperor's reaction at yesterday's banquet when Mr. Joseph C. Grew, U.S. Ambassador to Tokyo, read a message of congratulation today reported that the Emperor had shown marked signs of approval at the references to culture and well-being.

The Emperor nodded vigorously during that section of the speech made by the American Ambassador, they said. Since this was the only such occurrence during the two-day commemoration ceremonies, some diplomats interpreted the action as the Emperor's desire to demonstrate before Government officials his desire for international cooperation and amity.

The court circular reflected that attitude when it reported that the Emperor appeared to be greatly pleased at the message read by Mr. Grew.

Meanwhile, it was learned today that the American Ambassador and Mr. Yosuke Matsuoka, Foreign Minister, held another lengthy conference at the Tokyo Club last night.

Mr. Grew read his message at a huge outdoor banquet attended by their Majesties, the Emperor and Empress. The banquet was part of the celebrations in connection with Japan's 26th Centennial of the founding of the Empire.

Full Address

Mr. Grew, doyen of the diplomatic corps, read a short address, which concluded with the following words that seemed to meet with the Emperor's approval: "May your Majesty's people prosper and may the nation ever increasingly contribute to the general culture and well-being of mankind."

Mr. Grew's full address follows: "Your Imperial Majesty: It is with a profound sense of the solemnity of this occasion that, on behalf of the representatives of the foreign Powers here assembled, I express their deep appreciation of the privilege of attending the celebration of the historic anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire.

"This anniversary symbolizes and marks a long continuity of history and tradition for which Japan deservedly is distinguished.

"Today, on this momentous and profoundly significant occasion, the members of the Diplomatic Corps in Tokyo desire to convey to Your Imperial Majesty and to the Japanese nation their most respectful and sincere felicitations.

"May health and happiness attend Your Imperial Majesty and their Imperial Majesties the Empress and Empress Dowager and other members of the Imperial House.

"May Your Majesty's people prosper and may the nation ever increasingly contribute to the general culture and well-being of mankind."—United Press.

WHEN a truck disobeyed the order of a member of the Shanghai Special Municipality Police to stop just beyond the French Concession boundary in Avenue Joffre, the Chinese policeman fired at the truck, fortunately missing. No one was injured and the truck continued its journey without stopping. The incident took place shortly after 10 a.m. on Wednesday.

Robber Arrested Soon After Crime

Timely Alarm Results In Apprehension

An alarm raised by the victim resulted in the arrest of one robber in French Concession at 10.30 a.m. yesterday, after three men had attempted to rob the home of Ou Gno-heng, a rich Chinese merchant at 152/15 Rue de Saigon.

The robbers, one of whom was armed with a pistol, entered the house and the armed man covered the merchant, while the others started searching for money and valuables. At that moment, the brother-in-law of the victim came in and was immediately searched and robbed of $36.

When the bandits failed to find anything on the premises, they ordered Ou to show them his trunks. To do this, the victim went into another room, locked himself in and shouted for help.

The trio took immediately to their heels, but were pursued by the victim's brother-in-law and C.P.C. 65, who heard the alarm. After a long chase, the policeman managed to arrest one of the men. He turned out to be Sie Die-fang, aged thirty. Police investigations revealed that the arrested man had presented himself to the victim the night before and offered to sell him a fur coat for his wife. He declared that he lived in a gaming house in Nantao and was unemployed.

The other two robbers managed to escape, but the French Police believed yesterday that the information given by the arrested bandit would lead them to apprehend his accomplices.

India Co-operates Splendidly In British War Effort

Army Growing Rapidly; People with the Government And Against Nazis; Mr. Haward Describes Situation

THE importance of India as a factor in the British war effort and the fact that the country is fully cooperating with Britain by putting heart and soul into war work were emphasized yesterday by Mr. Edwin Haward who has just spent a month in India studying the political and economic situation there. Mr. Haward, former editor of the "North-China Daily News", is now Adviser on Indian Affairs to the Far Eastern Bureau of the Ministry of Information. He spent twenty years in India as a journalist before coming to China for seven years. Yesterday he spoke to a large group of journalists in Shanghai, later answering many questions.

Young men of the best type are coming forward in India to take posts created by the emergency, the Indian army is growing steadily and rapidly, many Indians are entering the air force and a great many are also going into workshops to learn how to produce war weapons and materials, Mr. Haward stated. He said there was no opposition to the sending abroad of Indian troops.

India is profiting as well as Britain by the efforts put forward in the advances made by Indian industry and the consequent decrease in unemployment. The country is in a good economic position, and the people are with the government and against the Nazis, Mr .Haward added. He stressed the importance of the meetings held at New Delhi at which the co-ordination of the support coming to the United Kingdom from India and the Dominions was planned.

Important Advances

Mr. Haward dwelt to some extent on the political situation in India, pointing out that the plans for Indian self-government were nearing completion when the war broke out. He said that Sir Samuel Hoare managed to get through important constitutional advances for India in 1937 by which British India would be given complete provincial autonomy. Through this action, eight of the eleven provinces came under the provincial administration with Indian-elected ministers for the first time, the Congress Party thereby being able to direct the course of local rule in all but three provinces. Work on the establishment of a central government was approaching completion when the German attack interrupted matters.

The importance of these facts were, Mr. Haward pointed out, that pending the arrival of a new central government, the old central government had to direct the foreign policies of the country and this meant, strictly speaking, that when Britain declared war on Germany, India automatically was at war with Germany also. But some friction developed at once because the Congress Party disliked the subservient position which denied them the right to decide for themselves, as the Dominions were able to do, whether to enter the war.

Moslems Want to Fight

As for the Moslem League, Mr. Haward said, that party was eager to fight the Nazis and owing to some nervousness over the growing power of the Congress Party, wanted no more constitutional advances for the country until the end of the war. Mr. Haward added that the Moslem League had become a very important concern with a forceful leader. But their desire, he said, for a separate block of Moslem provinces was not likely to prove popular for it would deny them many of the advantages which they now have.

It is generally realized that the process toward self-government in India must go on. Britain, Mr. Haward said, has dominion status in mind for India but until the framework of central government can be established the purpose cannot be fulfilled. Many Indians feel that dominion status would be preferable to full independence.

Referring to Mr. Gandhi, Mr. Haward said that a campaign of civil disobedience would have tremendous consequences but he said he did not know whether the Indian leader would go on another hunger strike or exactly what effect it would have.

Indian Sympathy for China

Despite differences in views, the relations between the Party Congress and the government were remarkably good, Mr. Haward said and the government was determined to prevent any permanent estrangement.

Indian opinion is intensely interested in China. Mr. Haward said much sympathy is felt for China. Although there is some friction between the Indians and the Japanese, especially at Bombay, it consists mostly of commercial rivalry. Mr. Haward said.

Memorial Services For Late Mayor

Many Attend Ceremony at His Avenue Joffre Home; Scrolls, Wreaths Sent

Memorial services for the late Mayor Fu Siao-en and his wife, Madame Fu Chu-chung, were held at the official's private residence at 1189 Avenue Joffre yesterday morning and were attended by many foreign business men and consular officials.

Simple in procedure, the ceremony started at ten o'clock and lasted till noon. Mr. J. Pinkuet Fu, the late Mayor's son, and his family received the visitors at the entrance, which was beautifully decorated with wreaths.

It is reported that Mr. Wang Ching-wei has decreed that a state funeral be held in honour of the assassinated official, for the services he rendered whilst in office. This will, in all probablity, take place in the latter part of November. The arrangements for this ceremony will be made by Mr. Chen Kung-po, appointed to take the late Mayor's place as head of the Shanghai Special Municipality.

The new mayor is expected to arrive in Shanghai this morning, assuming office on Saturday.

Among those present at the ceremony were Mr. M. Fischer, German Consul-General; Dr. O. Seger, German Consul; M. Roland de Margerie French Consul-General; Commandant A. Artigue, Officer Commanding French Troops; Commandant L. Fabre Commissioner of French Police; M. d'Hooghe, Directeur des Services Municipaux; Mr. A. van Cutsem, Belgian Consul-General; Mr. J. A. R. de Melo, Portuguese Consul-General Captain G. Bouvet of the French Forces; M. E. Lombalot, Sous-Directeur Adjoint de la Police Francaise; M. A. Moret of the French Police; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Franklin; Dr. R. A. Parker; Mr. A. T. Hull, jr., R.K.O. Pathe News; Mr. H. E. Morris; and many Japanese military officials and civilians, including Messrs. Kato, Ito, Keya, Fujiya, Kagnaitse, Oka, Takaguaka, Takida, Makeda, Hanawa, Okamoto, Hara, Sagimoto, Tomeoka, Matsenaka, Aiseyei, Takagaki.

Among Chinese friends of the late Mayor Fu Siao-en who attended the ceremony yesterday were Messrs. Yuan Li-tung, Yu Kien-chien, Mei Sze-ping, Chow-Vung-zai, Yin Wei-tse, Yu Tso-ding, C. C. Scrolls and wreaths were presented by Mr. Wang Ching-wei, acting President of the Nanking Government; Mr. Chow Nung-hai, Minister of Finance; Mr. Chen Kung-po, newly-appointed Mayor, and other high authorities, local prominent business men, relatives and friends of the late Mayor.

Thanksgiving Day on November 21

Local Americans to Hold Service, Celebrations

For the year 1940, President Roosevelt has named Thursday, November 21, as the national day of thanksgiving. In commemoration of the day the American community will gather at the Holy Trinity Cathedral at 11 o'clock in the morning for the Thanksgiving Service, which is being held under the auspices of the American Association. The service will terminate promptly at 12 o'clock.

Arrangements for the day are in the hands of Mr. L. C. Perry and his committee.

Mr. Frank P. Lockhart, American Consul-General, will preside over the service. Judge Milton J. Helmick will read the Presidential proclamation. The address of the day will be delivered by Bishop Ralph A. Ward. The general service will be conducted by the Rev. John L. Coughey, and the Dean of the Cathedral, the Very Rev. A. C. S. Trivett, will deliver the Benediction.

During the programme there will be music appropriate for the occasion, and Mr. Perry has been very fortunate, notwithstanding the evacuation, in securing volunteer services which should make that feature very interesting.

The entire American community is cordially invited to be present and take part in the Service, and their friends of other nationalities will be heartily welcomed.

D.A.R. Chapter Meet

The Shanghai Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. C. L. Boynton, 11 Ave. Petain, on Wednesday afternoon. Tea was served at 4 o'clock, followed by the regular monthly business meeting and programme. Mrs. J. C. McCracken was elected delegate to the Continental Congress which convenes in April, 1941. Mrs. Westbrook and Mrs. Gibbs were elected first and second alternate.

An interesting and comprehensive report of D.A.R. work in the States together with a summary of plans for the Golden Jubilee Celebration was given by Mrs. H. A. Wilbur. One of the outstanding achievements during the past fifty years has been educational efforts of the society. Last year $85,000 was given to the schools for "Mountain Whites." The Student Loan amounts to $390,000 (U.S.) This Loan Fund has made it poossible for 2,705 girls and 1,558 boys to get a college education. At present 356 girls and 209 boys are using the loan funds.

Another Japanese Shot in Hongkew

Captain Ishibashi Wounded By Chinese Gunman; Area Closed by Japanese

With the wounding of the Japanese gendarmerie officer on Tuesday morning still fresh in everybody's thoughts, the Japanese-controlled area north of the Soochow Creek was rocked again yesterday when another Japanese officer was shot by Chinese in Haining Road at about 1.20 p.m.

The victim, Captain Shin Ishibashi, was walking toward the Gonohashi Bridge in Yalu Road when a Chinese fired four shots at the officer's back. Two bullets lodged in the captain's right shoulder. The attack was made in front of the building housing the clinic of the Japanese Residents' Association at 96 Haining Road.

The gunman fled immediately and so far no traces had been found of him. The wounded officer, meanwhile, was taken to the Dojinkai Hospital in Haining Road, where his condition was reported to be satisfactory.

Stricter than ever were the Japanese search parties in Hongkew area after the shooting yesterday, a cordon being thrown around the complete district, disrupting traffic completely and detaining pedestrians and bus passengers for almst two hours on the Hongkew Creek bridges.

Japanese army and naval sentries were immediately posted on all street corners, while patrols, consisting of two or three bluejackets, were also sent to search Chinese in the district. The Broadway and East Seward Road bridges were completely jammed with buses and other vehicles, all passengers being forced to alight and be searched, foreigners not being subject to the procedure. Nevertheless, they were detained on the bridges while the Japanese went on with their work in searching Chinese.

Reserve Unit Out

In one instance, passengers were allowed to re-enter the buses only to be forced out less than five minutes later by Japanese soldiers who had arrived there in a lorry. All traffic was allowed to resume only at 3.15 p.m. after the Japanese had satisfied themselves that the gunman was not among them.

Members of the Reserve Unit were again sent to guard the Soochow Creek bridges on the southern side, each party consisting of two Russians, two Chinese and one Sikh.

Captain Ishibashi, it may be recalled, is the seventh victim to fall from gun shot wounds in the Japanese occupied area in the last one month and a half. The first was on September 29 when Major Isobe was shot by a gunman in North Szechuen Road. The list was further increased by the shooting of a Japanese N.C.O. in Siccawei, Corporal Sato in Yu Yuen Road, Lieutenant Nakamura in North Kiangse Road and the unknown Japanese, said to have been shot by a compatriot, in Haskell Road only two days ago. In addition to these, Mayor Fu Siao-en was hacked to death by his own servant on October 11.

Kidnappers Foiled by Japanese Gendarmes

Throw Victim Out of Car When Latter Appear

The appearance of three Japanese gendarmes forced six or seven Chinese kidnappers to throw their victim out of a car and to run for their lives at the corner of Keswick and Tunsin Roads at 9.30 a.m. yesterday. The car was later found by the Settlement Police.

The kidnapping took place shortly before 9.30 a.m. when the kidnappers saw Mr. Yoh Kwei-tsu, a wealthy old Chinese, leave his house at 37 Brenan Road in his own car. The men forced the chauffeur out and drove away with the victim towards Keswick Road. At the corner of Keswick and Brenan Roads the kidnappers noticed three Japanese gendarmes, out on search party, and seeing their plan fall through, threw their old victim out of the car.

The abductors then drove away to Keswick-Tunsin Road corner where they abandoned the car, which was found by the police at 9.50 a.m.

Four Years Sentence for Manslaughter

Li Ping-fu was sentenced to four years in gaol by the First Special District Court yesterday, after being found guilty of the manslaughter of Li Wen-ti, a Chinese coolie aged 32. The death of the victim occurred on November 5 after a fight with the accused over the alleged theft of a hammer. The prosecution stated that the two men met on Sungpang Road, when the accused noticed a hammer in the hands of the victim, and said that it was stolen from him. This led to a fight, in which, it was stated, only clenched fists were used, since the hammer was thrown away the moment the fighting began. After fighting for five minutes the victim fell to the ground groaning, and after being taken to hospital it was found that he had a ruptured spleen, which caused his death.

PRODUCERS OF THE FAMOUS "KITTEN" BRAND WOOLS

STORY OF THE CONTEST

Father Cat and Mother Cat gave birth to five kittens, all as lovely as "Kitten" Brand Knitting Wools. Everybody agreed that the five kittens were the loveliest in the whole city.

One day the five kittens left home to take a walk. The other kittens in the neighbourhood all came out, and mixed together with the five chosen kittens, so that Father Cat and Mother Cat could not tell which five were their own.

The Shanghai Worsted Mill, Ltd., being well acquainted with kittens, recognized and picked out the right five.

You are now invited to guess the right five from among the twenty kittens pictured below. The names of the twenty kittens are :—

When you buy "Kitten" Knitting Wools at any store, you will find 16 trademark tickets in one pound of Fingering Wool, and 8 trade mark tickets in one pound of Double Knitting Wool.

The names of the five kittens have been picked out at random from the twenty kittens by our Chairman, sealed in an envelope, and deposited for safekeeping with the Bank of China.

Marines Win Duck Pin Trophy By Defeating Woodchoppers

Leathernecks Now Assured of Premier Honours; Play-Off Necessary in Second Frame of Match

WITH the departure from Shanghai of three prominent members of the Marine bowling quintette in the City Duck Pin League "A" Division on the U.S.S. Chaumont, the rest of the team have sportingly complied with their request to the dates being advanced. As a result the Leathernecks met the "Y" Woodchoppers yesterday and bagged the trophy by defeating their closest rivals on the odd game.

It was a match packed with thrills from the very first roll. Winning the first frame the Marines were forced to a play-off in the second, which they won by a hair's-breadth, thus sealing the issue, for in the final game the Woodchoppers were found at their best as high singles by Gonsalves and Butler chalked up a convincing margin. However, Krencicki was in great form yesterday. His single of 125 in the second game rated tops until the "Y" bowlers got set, even then it was not passed. By their win the Marines are assured of premier honours, holding 17 wins with only a game in hand which they should have little difficulty in winning tonight.

With the League schedules almost completed, the Shanghai Bowling Congress have released the timetables for the various championships which include the Mixed Doubles, Ladies' Doubles, Men's Doubles, Ladies' Singles and Men's Singles. Reservations for time and alley for all events open on November 18 at Messrs. Squires, Bingham Company.

In respect of the championships one special mention point has been stressed and that is Rule 52 of the local constitution which reads:—

"No championship will be held unless there are ten or more entries for each event." This is brought out in view of the departure of quite a few of the City's fair sex who intend to enter but it must be on the understanding that the championship may be cancelled due to insufficient support. However, should there be any lady bowlers who are desirous of entering the Mixed Doubles or the Ladies' Doubles and who do not have partners, all they have to do is to get into contact with the Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. M. Gonsalves, care of the Yangtsze Insurance Association.

Friendly Basketball Game Today

A friendly basketball game will be played today between the Foreign Y.M.C.A. Giants and the Union, a good Chinese team, at the Foreign "Y" gym, starting at 7.15 p.m.

This game is a practice encounter, but should throw light on future events in the Foreign "Y" Invitation Basketball League, which starts December 9, and in which both squads are entered.

Blues Win Silver Pheasant Cup

By "The Chaser"

The Blues, a 17-goal team, scored a well deserved victory over the Yellows yesterday in the Silver Pheasant Cup to win by the score of 10 goals to six after a close and keenly contested match which was favoured with brilliant sunshine, making the weather conditions perfect for polo.

The score, a bit one sided as it may appear, was not the true indication of the true run of the play as there was little to choose between the two teams during the game. The Yellows, in fact, were enjoying the better of exchanges during the first half of the game although they came out on the shorter end of the scoring. Their frequent visits to the Blues goal met with little success and appeared to be badly below their usual standard of marksmanship. The winners were slow to getting together as team but when they struck their stride in the third chukker there was no doubt as to who were the masters of the situation. They did not dominate the play entirely as the losers visited their cidatel frequently but in must cases their efforts were either cleared at the last moment or hit behind the line.

The match was played at a terrific pace and the ball was continually kept on the move, being rushed up and down the field. The speed of the game called for a number of fouls which rose from the exuberent enthusiasm of the players. The Yellows conceded several vital gains during the match when the Blues were awarded free hits from the 60 and 40 yard marks. Although not all of them were converted the fouls served as an opening for the Blues' attacks. R. B. Moller was hitting a fine ball and all though he was responsible for three goals he might have been credited with a couple more if his balls had a bit more direction. He took three 60-yard free hits and lifted each shot well above the heads of the players and they would have certain goals if they had not gone wide. "Dick" Harris served his side well by contributing three points for the team, while Allman tallied twice and C. B. Moller once. One goal was given to them on a dangerous foul committed just outside of the opposing goal.

Kirkoriantz was a tower of strength for his side and were it not for his bustling and energetic efforts in dashing up and down the field the team might have suffered a heavier defeat. He "shouted" a good game and accounted for two points for his side. Colonel Hornby and Krikoriantz displayed some very pretty stick work and excellent team play. Lacks was a bit off colour and was not hitting his usual long ball. Moore was dogged by ill luck when he sent the ball wide in several easy shots.

A few minutes after the start of the match The Yellows were given a free goal and they continued to hold this advantage for serveral minutes before Krikoriantz increased it by another point. The Blues did not really get warmed up until the third chukker when their aggressive efforts rewarded them with three goals.

The climax of the match was reached when the teams and their guests sat to tiffin and amid beers and "soup to nuts" menu Mrs. Harris presented the trophy to the winning team and, after three rousing cheers, was presented with a bouquet of three flowers picked from the garden. During the tiffin H. B. Moller on behalf of the Commfttee requested Mrs. Harris' permission to rename the trophy and call it the Harris Silver Pheasant Cup.

"H" Company Makes Certain of Cates Basketball Title

Defeat Headquarters 2nd by Overwhelming Margin; Team-Work Triumphs Over Individual Brilliance

IN a flurry of speedy plays and with clock-like co-ordination "H" Company made virtually certain of the Colonel Cates Basketball League title last night, by defeating their closest rivals, Headquarters 2nd, 55-25 at the Navy Y.M.C.A. last night.

Taking a 16-point lead, which was twice as large as the score of Headquarters 2nd at the end of the first half, "H" Company continued to besiege their opponents' basket with unceasing regularity.

It was the good team-work of individually brilliant men that triumphed over the brilliant individual efforts of two Headquarters 2nd players—Stokes and Dingwall.

There were three other fixtures on schedule last night. "E" Company stunned Service Company with a 41-11 victory, "F" Company defeated Headquarters 4th by 39-28 and Headquarters 1st triumphed 35-22.

Jack Barnato Joel Dies

London, Nov. 13.

The death has occurred of Jack Barnato Joel, partner in the firm of Barnato Brothers and well-known race horse owner, at the age of 78.

Mr. Joel, who kept a large breeding and racing stud, was permanent chairman of the Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Company and a director of many Rand gold mines.—Reuter.

P.T.H. Gain Ample Revenge on Saints

Two hundred loud-voiced schoolboys watched the Public and Thomas Hanbury School score a decisive 6-3 victory over St. Xaviers in an Inter-Scholastic Football League fixture at the Race Course yesterday and construed it to be fitting revenge for the 5-0 defeat the P. T. H. Old Boys suffered in a First Division encounter with the "Saints" last Sunday.

The match was a crucial tussle in the race for Inter-Scholastic honours. The P. T. H. XI has suffered one defeat so far, at the hands of the French Municipal College, the S.F.X. suffered its first setback yesterday, and there is now a two-way tie for second place.

The French Municipal College, incidentally, will meet S.F.X. over the week-end, and there will be a three-way tie for first place in the event the St. Xaviers team triumphs.

The match yesterday clearly showed the superior standard of football on the part of the P.T.H. The speed of the "Saints," who were led by Cecil Edwards, did not avail against the clever movements of the winners.

The teams follows:—

P.T.H.:—W. Quincey; A. Griffiths, Y. Tsukasaki; A. J. Mooney, M. S. Saiteh, G. Klingenberg; G. Nesvadba, H. C. Kidby, L. C. Simoes, P. Gilchrist, D. Novgorodoff.

S.F.X.:—A. Kirpikoff; A. Pereira, R. Beeman; A. Setianin, P. Golikoff, E. Brown; E. Sitsinsky, A. Angestad, C. Barradas, C. Edwards, G. Ivanow.

THE WONDERFUL 1941 PLYMOUTHS

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO VISIT OUR SHOWROOM AND SEE THEM AT 80 AVENUE EDWARD VII

NOW! A FOUR-WAY POWER STEP-UP IN MOTORING'S BEST "BUY"

PLYMOUTH offers the greatest value that has ever been provided in motor cars — a new improved Plymouth that sells right down in the low-priced range . . . Although low-priced, the Plymouth is extra large. Its 117″ wheelbase, the large roomy interior, compare in size with cars of much higher price . . . Its economy size, six-cylinder engine produces enormous power — 88 horsepower to provide exciting performance at the slightest touch of the toe; economical power that costs surprisingly little per mile . . . Plymouth's power has been stepped up in four ways: (1) higher engine horsepower; (2) higher engine torque or pulling power; (3) higher transmission second speed for flashing pickup and getaway; and (4) high-speed axle gear ratios. New mechanical improvements, including Lifetime engine bearings and new Safety Wheels, provide the latest engineering miracles to come out of automotive research laboratories . . . Superfinish for vital parts, combined with the new Lifetime bearings, insure smooth performance through more thousands of miles than you may think possible. The new Safety Wheels reduce enormously the dangers resulting from tire punctures and blowouts, and make motoring safer than it has ever been before . . . And its appearance is impressively modern — beautiful in the advanced manner of 1941 . . . See this great new car that now offers most for your money in motoring.

Safety First Week: A Reader's Suggestions

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—I would like to see the following measures taken by the Settlement police in connection with the Safety First week, and now that the S.M.P. have made a few promotions in their personnel I sincerely hope that the "new brooms" will be able to do something to improve conditions.

(1) That the vegetable hawkers be prohibited from using the streets for displaying and selling their vegetables. They continue to use Avenue Edward VII (opposite Poste Mallet) in spite of many protests, and other streets such as the intersection of Avenue Foch and Chungking Road are nearly always impassable.

(2) I suggest that the Shanghai Tramway Co., co-operate with the S.M.P. by prohibiting loads of fruit, etc., being carried on tramcars and thereby stopping the congestion on the Bund every morning which is invariably blocked with baskets waiting to be loaded on to trams.

(3) The tricycles with trailers should be prohibited from using the main road along the Bund. They are frequently to be seen here plying for hire and are a very great obstruction at times.

(4) I also would like to see the Chinese traffic policemen take more interest in their job, and think they ought to be drilled by the European officers to have a proper understanding of their responsibilities. At present motor cars and rickshaws are allowed to overstep the safety-line and pedestrians are left to find their way across the road as best as they are able to, with the risk of getting a poke in the face from the shaft of some rickshaw. The policemen do not attempt to make vehicles observe the rule. Incidentally the European officers in the Settlement streets seem to be rather scarce by their continual absence!

(5) Lastly, although this is not a traffic problem, I think that something ought to be done to have the dead beggars removed from along Avenue Edward VII as quickly as possible. There have been a few left there the whole day during the recent cold snap, and this is rather gruesome to say the least.

F.M.C. Housing: Complaint of Slow Progress

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Months have passed since the establishment of the Commission. A set of rules regulating the chaotic housing conditions has been announced and so far no results have been achieved.

The removal of the key-money racket, the fixing of maximum rents, and the protection of tenants who are pressed by the landlords at the expiration of their lease were described as the outstanding objectives of the Committee.

An announcement to the effect that the promulgation of laws regarding the housing conditions may be expected this month would be felt as a relief by all those who are subject to the exorbitant demands of the landlords.

Local Lepers: Papers and Clothes Wanted

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—It now seems certain that the 110 lepers in the Shanghai leprosarium, 16 Brenan Road, will have to spend another cold winter in matsheds. Recently the matsheds have been a bit repaired, but newspapers are earnestly solicited by the leper inmates to place between the layers of the matting. This prevents the cold wind from getting in. May I ask you through the means of your paper to ask the Shanghai public for old newspapers and possibly for old clothes or blankets for the lepers for the coming winter?

I shall be glad to receive them at our home at 7 Edinburgh Road, or if there are large quantities, will make arrangements to get them. Phone 24096. Any large sheets of papers can be used, although newspapers are especially serviceable.

P.T.H. School: British Barracks for Boys

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—I hear that the Public and Thomas Hanbury School for Boys is again about to be moved into new premises. These new premises are the disused British Barracks behind Jessfield Park, probably the most unsavoury quarter of the city. The situation of the school is bad as it is, situated on Kinnear Road, but to be moved further away from the centre of the city into such an out-of-the-way and dangerous area is utterly ridiculous. If the S.M.C. must get other premises, surely they should be nearer to the centre of the city. Something should be done about this preposterous idea; either leave the school where it is or give it some decent premises nearer to the center of the city.

It is suprising how one of the oldest schools in the city should be so treated, being driven from one place to another, each place worse than the last.

Wells Silent on Nomura

Washington, Nov. 14.

Mr. Sumner Welles, the Under-Secretary of State, yesterday declined to comment on the reported appointment of Admiral Kichasabura Nomura as Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Welles said he preferred to have the formal announcement of the appointment emanate from Tokyo.

Press reports yesterday said that Admiral Nomura had been named Japanese Ambassador to Washington. Formal announcement of the appointment in Tokyo, however, must await Washington's acceptance of the Admiral.—United Press.

Blockade of Germany In Second Phase

Imports Restricted While Production Attacked

London, Nov. 14.

The Ministry of Economic Warfare, in an interview with Reuter, stated yesterday that the combination of bombing and naval blockade was having a marked effect on Germany's war-machine.

The first phase of the economic warfare, that of stopping the enemy's imports, has now developed into the second phase—attacking the means of production while continuing the deprivation of imports

Germany's copper shortage is straining her aluminium industry, thus making her aluminium refineries important targets for R.A.F. bombs. The Ministry knows the location of the most vulnerable targets and directs the Royal Air Force's nightly attacks, Reuter was informed.

The Ministry rebuts the charge that the Allies are only waging a war of destruction against Germany's new European economy. Germany is undoubtedly creating a certain economic structure in Europe, and is hoping to make it Eurasian through her discussions with M. Viacheslav Molotov, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, but it is neither permanent nor constructive, being simply subjugation and exploitation by brute force.—Reuter.

Hungary Cooperating With Axis Powers

Count S. Csaky Expresses Wish to Localize War

Budapest, Nov. 14.

Hungary is cooperating with Germany and Italy in order to localize the European conflict, Count Stephen Csaky, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, said yesterday.

"Hungary remains unchanged side by side with Germany and Italy," Count Csaky told Parliament during a budget debate when he reviewed Hungary's foreign policy.

Cooperation with Germany and Italy "will keep us from the danger of war and redound to the interest of the Powers which aim at localizing the war," Count Csaky said.

The Foreign Minister reiterated Hungary's desire for peace in the Danube basin, appeasement with Rumania and true friendship with Yugoslavia.

Relations with Soviet Russia are "strictly correct and normal," Count Csaky said, explaining that Hungary is striving to improve economic relations with Russia, including a direct rail link.—United Press.

Russia Not Likely To Commit Self

Germany Seen Trying to Associate Soviet With Anti-Comintern Pact

London, Nov. 14.

Amid a welter of speculation and propaganda, the German Foreign Office has itself betrayed its principal objective in inviting M. Viacheslav Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, to Berlin, says Reuters' Diplomatic correspondent.

A Wilhelmstrasse statement refers to the primary need of fixing a basis of Soviet collaboration, not merely with the Axis, but with Japan. In other words having secured Japan's participation in the tripartite agreement, designed to counter any move by the United States, Germany is now trying to associate the Soviet with the pact.

It is unlikely, however, that the Soviets will fall in with Hitler's plans so far as to commit themselves to any specific course as the war develops. That talks may result in improved relations between the Soviet and Japan is by no means improbable. Neither country wishes to be drawn into the war and there are abundant questions in which their interests run parallel.

Although it is not easy to see any common ground regarding the situation in China, some form of compromise on that subject is easier to envisage than any commitments by the Soviets in Europe, other than economic.

It will be recalled that Germany tried to trace the new Polish frontier further westward so as to give Russia a bigger slice of Poland, but must now be satisfied with territories where the inhabitants are mostly Russian, therefore, it is unlikely that Stalin now will be tempted to a policy of adventure.

As for economic talks, it is only necessary to recall the exaggerated hopes that Germany built upon in the agreement last year with the Soviet to realize the gulf between promise and performance in the supply of Russian materials. It is probble, however, that Molotov will agree to the admission of German experts to help to overcome the delays inherent in Russia's economic system.

The smashing British victory over the Italian Fleet at Taranto will doubtless weigh heavily in the scales of the Axis deliberations.—Reuter.

U.S. Gives Britain Old Type of Bomb-Sight

Device May Be Used for Experiments

Washington. Nov. 14.

The Government has allowed Britain to use one of the older types of U.S. Army bomb sights for experimental purposes, it was authoritatively learned here yesterday.

The bomb sight can be placed in production if the British desire to use it, after they have completed their experiments, informed sources said.

The bomb sight is said to be more efficient than aerial sights now being used by the R.A.F., reports said.

Meanwhile, it was learned, the U.S. Army and Navy jealously are guarding later models of the bomb sight. The more recent models are believed to include the one which has caused much recent speculation and reports that it had been given to the British.—United Press.

Scribbling on Walls in Germany Said Sabotage

Berlin, Nov. 14.

German police arrested two Alsatians today on the serious charge of sabotage. The Alsatians were caught scribbling on public building walls inscriptions regarded as hostile to Germany. Three other Alsatians met a similar fate because of "attempting a sabotage demonstration detrimental to the National Socialistic Party."—United Press.

"Firm Flesh" Turns To Fat

When Food Tract is Constipated.

A cause of unhealthy fat is often a congested food tract. Absorbing the fermenting wastes into your system will create the fat of ill-health. These digestive poisons account for the sick headaches, bilious attacks, flatulence, skin blotches and bad breath to which over-weight women and men are subject.

For constipation you should take Pinkettes. These little laxative pills are absolutely harmless. They effectively disperse the waste matter, keep the food tract clean and active, and painlessly exercise and strengthen the lazy bowels. IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

"GLORIOUS EPISODE"

The popular demand in Britain that Italy should be made to bear the full brunt of war is now being met with a vengeance, and what happened between Monday and Tuesday in the port of Taranto is but a foretaste of what the Italians have to expect. As the result of brilliant action by the fleet air arm the Italian navy has been badly damaged if not, as it has been claimed, crippled. In its communiqué on the operation the Admiralty claims that the damage done has been ascertained by photographic reconnaissance. Two battleships have been severely damaged, one down by the bows and the other beached, and a third believed severely battered, two cruisers left listing and surrounded by oil fuel, while two auxiliaries were seen with their sterns under water. Despite its strength, greater on paper than the British forces in the Mediterranean, the Italian navy has consistently refused the British challenge. The air arm went after them, and the result is that the Admiralty can now claim that probably only three Italian battleships remain effective.

There cannot be the slightest doubt that the British airmen will seek them out too, and, unless the Italians can offer a better defence than they appear to have done at Taranto, further damage may be inflicted upon them. Mr. Churchill, in describing this feat of arms as a "glorious episode," said significantly that the result obtained "while it affects the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean, also carries with it reactions on the naval situation in every quarter of the globe." Thus while the crippling of the German fleet permitted Britain to make new naval dispositions, the great blow which has been struck at Italy so successfully will allow fresh changes to be made, because of the swift alteration which has been made in the balance of naval strength in those waters. From the point of view of international politics the stroke has been well timed. The conference at Berlin will now be continued with the knowledge that a great reverse has been inflicted upon one partner in the Rome-Berlin Axis, and that as Germany lost the air battle for Britain, so Italy has suffered most heavily at Taranto. A fleet, which has had one half of its capital ships rendered ineffective, has suffered a major catastrophe. It must, nevertheless be remembered that the Italians have still a large number of smaller vessels than those dealt with at Taranto with which they may seek to maintain their lines of communications open across the Mediterranean and the Straits of Otranto, but the chances of a major naval action taking place have greatly receded as a result of what has occurred.

These last few days have seen greater British activity against Italy than at any time during this war. On the night of November 13 Britain scored a naval success against the enemy, cutting into their line of communications across the Straits of Otranto, sinking one supply ship for sure, setting fire to two others which it is claimed have probably sunk, and damaging a fourth which escaped behind a smoke screen. The escorting destroyers beat a speedy retreat under the same protection though one was hit and damaged. In addition to all this the R.A.F. has been busy pounding Italian bases in Albania. Durazzo, it is claimed, has been completely gutted and fuel depots destroyed, while Valona has been heavily bombed, an ammunition dump probably hit, and jetties damaged.

This, it may be taken for granted, is only the beginning. As the various air bases on the Greek islands are brought fully into operation Great Britain may be expected to unleash more, and heavier attacks upon military objectives in Italy, and Mussolini may have more than present reasons to regret that he was so ill-advised as to permit Italian aeroplanes to take part in the raids on Britain and particularly London. The Greeks have been showing Italian weakness on land, the British Navy has very considerably weakened the Italians at sea, and this week has proved to be one of the most encouraging to Great Britain and her Allies that has been experienced for a very long while.

THE GREEK SUCCESS

The cables relating to the Italian attack on Greece have from the very commencement been so vague that it has been very difficult indeed to discover exactly what has been occurring, but during the last few days information has come to hand which affords the possibility of presenting a picture of what has been taking place. When the Italians commenced their invasion they appear to have endeavoured to establish three lines of advance. The first, and probably the most important, was the thrust southeastwards from Albania towards Florina for the purpose of opening the way to Salonika the most important of all immediate objectives. The second was a thrust due south towards Yanina, and the third was an endeavour to advance into the Epirus along the coast. While there might have been light forces maintaining some sort of general liaison between the forces seeking to advance along these lines the nature of the terrain does not suggest that these were of any very great strength.

The Greeks attaching the most importance to the Italian thrust towards Florina threw the greater part of their strength then available,—for their mobilization was not completed until some days after the outbreak of hostilities,—in the area around Biklista, where they succeeded not only in repelling the Italian advance, but were early able to assume the offensive, and commence a drive into Albania with Koritza as the first objective. Success in this direction had the effect of outflanking the Italians' thrust southwards towards Yanina, where it is interesting to note that they actually succeeded in penetrating into Greece a distance of 36 miles, getting to within eight miles of Metsova before the Greeks were able to drive them back. This had been done by pushing swiftly down the Spilios and Voiousa passes along a 24 mile front which was at that time sparsely held by the Greeks. Thus a deep, but very narrow salient was created, which would necessarily prove dangerous unless adequate support could be afforded by similar advances on either flank. It will be seen that the Greek advance towards Koritza definitely threatened the left flank of the Italians, while the failure of the latter to penetrate sufficiently deeply into the Epirus similarly endangered the Italian thrust in the centre.

The advance made here appears to have taken the Greeks by surprise, but once its significance was realized they appear to have struck in the vicinity of Mount Smoltka, from the Pindus Range, east of the Voiousa pass, and on the western side across the river which gives the pass its name. The result was that some 12,000 Italians were forced into speedy retreat, which judging from the reports of the munitions and material left behind must have been something in the nature of a rout. All the Italians did not succeed in escaping, for the Greeks managed to surround a considerable part of them, who according to the latest reports are still beleaguered. The defeat of the Italian eastern thrust and the collapse of the centre has consequently obliged the Italians to fall back into Albania, and, according to the Greeks, not one Italian remains on Greek soil who is not a captive. That obviously does not apply to those Italians in the Voiousa Pass who are surrounded and whom the Italians are making strenuous efforts to assist by dropping supplies and munitions by parachute from aeroplanes. It is doubtful whether they will be able to hold out until the Italians can stage another offensive, for the defeat which has been inflicted upon them is one from which they will take some time to recover, especially as the British navy and air arm are able to interfere with the lines of communication and wreak havoc on their bases in Albania.

The first conclusion to be drawn from all that has happened is that in the first instance the Italian command gravely underestimated the strength of the Greeks, and embarked upon what they thought would be a spectacular, and easy conquest of Greece. Meeting with light resistance in the centre they pushed forward with insufficiently protected flanks with the result, that when they were deep enough in the country, and the Greeks were ready to strike, there was no alternative but a hasty withdrawal. The second conclusion is highly favourable to General Metaxas, who four years ago undertook the reorganization of the Greek Army. It has proved itself to be just as efficient as its individual components are gallant, and the manner in which the Greek army, and particularly the crack Evzones, have fought off and beaten the Italian invasion redounds greatly to their credit. With a force of eight divisions against the Italian nine the Greeks have been able to inflict a defeat upon them which will in no way enhance Mussolini's prestige, though it may be taken for granted that it will be a very long time before the Italian people will be allowed to learn of this signal reverse.

Axis Unity ?

The recent developments among the Axis Powers deserve serious study. Since the signature of the tripartite pact, Italy has gone to war with Greece. The pact did not become operative possibly because the Japanese did not agree that Italy had been "attacked," though the Italians claimed they had been. Germany is supposed to be on friendly terms with Greece, in spite of the fact that the Greeks are giving the Nazis' partner a real grilling and the whole of the Axis is losing "face." In the circumstances it may well be questioned whether this much advertised pact is worth anything at all. Doubtless M. Molotov, who is nothing if not astute, is not unfamiliar with Nazi good faith, and understands its value as it is being demonstrated at the present time in the Balkans. The manner in which all partners in the Axis are fulfilling their obligations to each other cannot have escaped him. And also the undeniable fact that the Italians are being given a hard time—so hard that it might well be decisive before long—should have its effect in moulding the decisions to be taken during the talks in Berlin. Out of the welter of events one thing seems to be emerging clearly, namely that each partner in the Axis is out only for his own gain. The gain of the other partners matters little or nothing. Germany is apparently prepared to remain aloof from Italy's Grecian adventure, so long as the Soviets may be persuaded to make some concession in Germany's favour. In spite of their military alliance, the Italians can expect no assistance so long as there is a chance that there is something to be got by the Nazis out of Russia. In the same way the Far Eastern partner in the Axis can rely only upon indirect aid, provided the other partners themselves make substantial gains thereby. It is possible that a Soviet-Japanese pact would considerably embarrass Great Britain and her Allies, but Berlin will certainly not go an inch out of its way to secure such a pact unless the Nazi cause were going to be very directly benefited. It seems not unlikely that Japan, after having been rushed into the signature of an alliance with Berlin and Rome by a body of extremists, is now slowly waking up to the unpleasant fact that this alliance means little. Japan stands to gain nothing from an Axis victory, while, being essentially a trading nation, she has much to gain from the success of the Democracies. In the United States there has grown up a reasonable suspicion of Japanese intentions on the continent of Asia—the result of a difference of opinion over the meaning of the phrase status quo. If the Japanese believe that preservation of the status quo is the same thing as spreading their influence over areas where it existed only indirectly before, they are falling into the error which the other partners in the unworkable Axis fell into long ago, to their great cost. And there is no friend of peace in the Far East who does not wish them to wake up to the fact that they are being deceived by the loud speakers of Europe—by Hitler and Mussolini—into doing their dirty work, without much prospect of reward.

STRAY NOTES

Nov. 9.—Among the most prominent features in my garden just now are the heaps of leaves which my gardener sweeps together with such assiduity that he wears out about two brooms a week (see monthly accounts).....and it is not surprising that these monuments to his industry should urge me to refresh my memory on the Megapodes and their strange nests made of heaped-up leaves. These birds are generally referred to as "Mound Birds," though the exact meaning of their scientific name is "Big Feet"—saving the presence of the lady Megapodes. These very wise birds have found a way to relieve themselves of all trouble in the production, feeding and upbringing of their young. They scratch together great mounds of leaves mixed with a little earth or sand and deposit their eggs therein, leaving the heat of the sun and the decaying and fermenting of the vegetable matter to incubate the eggs: but cleverer still is this point: the female knows that eggs must be turned in the course of the hatching (if they are laid on their sides, as eggs normally are) to prevent the yolk from sticking to the wall of the egg and "addling"; so she places each egg in an upright position with the narrow end down—the leaves and earth support it—and all is well. On top of all this Nature kindly arranges that the baby "big-feet" hatch out with sufficient feathers to enable them to fly and to fend for themselves from birth....so why should mother worry? Megapodes vary in size and the largest is the Australian Brush-Turkey (about the size of a smallish hen-turkey); these birds may be seen—with their familiar mounds—in the Wood Lawn Bird Sanctuary at Whipsnade, where I visited them on my last Home leave. Smaller Megapodes are found in the Malay Archipelago, Nicobar Islands and the Philippines....and it is concerning the last of these that the Encyc. Brit. quotes quite seriously the following from the report of a missionary priest made nearly 300 years ago, "What I and many more admire is that it (the bird) being no bigger in body than an ordinary chicken, ... yet lays an egg larger than a goose, so that the egg is bigger than the bird itself..." The italics are mine—and I am sure the priest was an Irishman.

EVERYBODY'S WORKSHOP

Where Anybody Can Rent a Bench

Eddie Husted was designing advertising displays in San Francisco when he hit on the idea. Several fellows had dropped in to see if they could use the display shop's lathe, bandsaw and tools at night. They couldn't get this permission because the shop had to be available after hours for rush orders, writes Frank F. Taylor in "Forbes." Then the idea struck Husted: Why not open a build-it-yourself workshop where enthusiasts could rent space and tools?

He didn't have the $3,000 needed to equip a shop. Vainly he tried to borrow from banks and friends. As a last resort he advertised in a Sunday paper and discovered Neal Jacobs, an accountant who had $2,000 and was a workshop enthusiast, too. They found a light, airy, third floor with space for 60 workbenches, well located about halfway between downtown and the main residential area.

After paying for tools and materials for benches, there was no money for a down payment on power machines. Undaunted, Husted went to equipment dealers with his rate schedule: the workshop would be run on a weekly charge of $1 for space and 15 cents an hour for tools, plus rentals for each machine at from 10 to 25 cents for 15-minute periods. Earnings of machines would be applied on their price. On this basis dealers let him have one of the finest assemblies of power equipment in town, including saws, lathes, joiners, drill presses, arc welders, paint sprayers, forges, and a steam box for bending plywood and planks to streamline shapes. Husted quit his job at once, but Jacobs for a time kept his and spent his evenings as the workshop's secretary-treasurer.

The two partners hung out a sign, "Come in and build it yourself," put ads in the papers, and opened the doors of The Workshop. At first only curiosity seekers came but after a month every "spot"—a workbench and 100 square feet of floor space—was taken. Among the firstcomers was a hospital superintendent who made a wooden pattern for a sundial to be cast in brass for his garden. Then he started on garden furniture, a favourite with many customers.

Amateurs Advised by Experts

Several auto trailers were rushed for vacation trips, but they did not vie in popularity with boatbuilding. Thirteen boats, from collapsible canoe to 20-foot cabin cruiser, were on the floor when I visited the place. Amateur boatbuilders get expert advice from a hobbyist, who in return is given a free spot in which to work out his own brain child, a new-type sailboat. His advice is free, but for any work that he does he is allowed to charge $1.15 an hour. The workshop gets the 15 cents. Mr. Husted advises on the same basis.

Two young engineers are having the time of their lives trying to devise a new type of motor. A building-material man invented a machine for laying and fastening roofing, and sold the patent rights for several thousand dollars. Welders practise regularly to perfect their technique and qualify for high-pay jobs. A policeman is making furniture for his bride. A salesman is building a circular cigar counter to launch his own business in some office-building lobby.

Busiest time at the workshop is after dinner during the week (open until midnight) and all day Saturday and Sunday.

The oldest patron is a 60-year-old retired silk merchant, the youngest a high school boy who made his mother a sewing box. The average age is 32. Women also are patrons; two housewives make walnut boxes, which they later carve at home, and a businesswoman turns wooden salad bowls on the lathe. The most unusual customer is a Jewish relief organization which pays for a dozen refugees from Austria and Czechoslovakia who are learning to work in wood and papier-mâché in order to make native toys for sale.

Instead of operating in the red for a year, as expected, the business made money after three months. Every cent of the profits, except bare living expenses for Messrs. Husted and Jacobs, is ploughed back into more equipment.

Already Eddie Husted has had so many requests for detailed information about the workshop from persons in other cities that he has had to charge $25 for advisory service by mail. He is planning a national build-it-yourself bulletin so that the fireman in Boston and the lawyer in San Francisco can swap ideas about their teardrop trailers, or speedboats with air-cooled engines, or anything else they make with their own hands.

Sane Answer

During his vacation a noted bishop conducted the Sunday service at a state farm for the insane. The congregation was orderly but quite unimpressed by the bishop's high ranking in the church.

"The fact is," the superintendent smiled, "we have a patient here who calls himself God. Perhaps you would care to meet him?"

"Indeed, very much."

The inmate proved to be an impressive individual with a long white beard, tall, thin, very formal in his bearing.

"I am honoured to meet you," said the bishop, modestly introducing himself. "I understand I am addressing God?"

"You are," said the patient with dignity.

"Well, there is one thing I would very much like to ask you, something in my study of the Bible I find rather difficult to understand. You made the world in six days. Now is that an omniscient figure of speech? Or would you mean six centuries, or ages or eons? I should be most grateful to know."

"Bishop," was the solemn reply, "I make it a practice never to talk shop."

HIGHLY-STRUNG CHILDREN
are the most gifted

But you should watch out for these DANGER SIGNS of nervous overstrain

YOU should be specially proud if your child is the highly-strung, sensitive type. She is so much quicker, more vivid in her reactions than other children. Even when she's very young, you can see that she has exceptional qualities — qualities that mark her out for success in life.

But you should be continually on your guard. In the bringing-up of highly-strung children there are dangers that do not arise in the case of ordinary children.

Highly-strung children spend their energies too recklessly. They are prone to weaken and exhaust their nervous systems with bad effects in later life.

The signs of nervous overstrain to watch out for are: difficulty and slowness in eating meals; paleness and tendency to get overtired; tantrums and fits of irritability and bad temper. If these signs occur, action should be taken at once.

What is happening is that the child is using up her nervous energy more quickly than she's replacing it. And it is at night, during sleep, that these stores of nervous energy should be replaced.

If they are not replaced, the nervous strain on the child gets worse and worse. She's suffering from Night Starvation.

Give your child Horlicks, a cupful, hot, regularly at bedtime. Horlicks will guard her against Night Starvation by replacing her nervous energy while she sleeps.

You'll see the difference almost at once. There'll be no more upsets and tantrums, no more slowness at meals. Your child will be happier, more balanced, less worry to you. Her nervous system will be strengthening itself as it should for later life.

Start Horlicks to-night. Plain or chocolate-flavoured. Horlicks is obtainable at all good stores.

Hitler and Mussolini Meet A Spot of Bad Luck

Mr. Wickham Steed Believes the "Two Gangsters" Are on the Run

The following article was written by Mr. Wickham Steed, lecturer on Central European history, former editor of "The Times" and of the "Review of Reviews." He is one of Europe's most noted historians.

London, Nov. 14.

DURING the past ten days the war has begun to enter a new phase. How long this phase will last, whether it will be continuous or be interrupted nobody can yet tell. It began with a spell of bad luck for Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini. The run of events has been positively against them. In the past they have had some negative setbacks or disappointments. Now they are facing real reverses for the first time. The question is: how will they and how can they react?

The re-election of President Roosevelt was a serious reverse. Although it was moral more than material it deprived the dictators of their hope that there might be a period of confusion and uncertainty in the United States while the executive power was being transferred from one President to another.

Unwelcome Events

The next unwelcome event was the unexpected disturbance by British bombers of Chancellor Hitler's beer hall oration at Munich. This was more than a picturesque incident. It taught the German people and others that the omnipotent and invincible Fuhrer can no longer be sure of doing what he would like to do even in his own country.

Then came the bombings of Brindisi, Valona and Naples to say nothing of the Krupp Works and Danzig by other British bombers. Worse still was the wiping out of a crack division of Italian troops by Greeks. To crown this misfortune came the disastrous earthquake last Sunday in Rumania which upset Hitler's hopes of getting speedily large supplies of Rumanian oil. Together with the Italian military defeats, this earthquake will have made all the Balkan peoples wonder whether Herr Hitler really has providence in his pocket.

So throughout Europe and in a large part of the world the people are now asking whether the dictators and their peoples will be able to "take it" in the same way as the British people and their leaders have stood up to the worst Herr Hitler and Sig. Mussolini could do. This question can not be answered offhand. For the dictators everything, including their own lives, is at stake. They do not have well established national systems that might survive a catastrophe such as the framework of Bismarck's Germany survived the crash of 1918 and was taken over by the Weimar republic.

Gangsters on the Run

Herr Hitler and Sig. Mussolini are supreme gangsters and gunmen whose systems are rackets. If, and when, they see themselves cornered, they may try to sell their lives as dearly and do as much damage as they can before they go under.

Neither Herr Hitler nor Sig. Mussolini is yet cornered. Recent events have spoiled the atmosphere for them without doing them deadly injury. But the idea has spread that they may one day be cornered and that instead of running their rackets unhindered they may themselves be on the run. And gangsters on the run are less impressive than gangsters triumphant.

What about their peoples? Herr Hitler and Sig Mussolini would have been more scared than they certainly are if they had not consistently destroyed everything in their own countries that could oppose them. They have oppressed and terrorised their own peoples as systematically as the peoples of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Holland and Belgium. For eighteen years the Italian, and for nearly eight years the German people have been kept in comprehensive ignorance of truth and subjected to ruthless police control. One can not safely assume that they could revolt even if they would.

"Window Dressing"

This ignorance, this enforced spinelessness should not be overlooked. Nor should M. V. Molotov's visit to Berlin be underestimated. At the very least it is a fine piece of window dressing. What will come out of it remains to be seen.

Herr Hitler's obvious course would be to offer Russia temporarily a high price for neutralization of Turkey. The price would have to be very high and perhaps to include practical guarantees that Herr Hitler would not turn against Russia when Britain and her Allies should have been defeated in the Middle East. Herr Hitler may be desperate enough to offer any price, including pressure on Japan, to work with Russia. Whether he could pay the price is another question.

It is here that the support of the United States for the Allied cause weighs heavily in the scale. It may be the decisive factor. Russia and Japan will not ignore it. Meanwhile, Britain will go on hitting Sig. Mussolini without respite and the Greeks, encouraged by the British support, may take a lot of beating.

However things may go in the near future, it seems unlikely that the luck of the dictators will turn overnight. Anyway their desperation will be met by unflinching determination on the part of Britain and her Allies backed by increasing strength and efficiency.—United Press.

Japanese View on Berlin Meeting

Successful Axis Diplomacy A Great Blow to Britain, U.S.A., Says Chugai Shogyo

Tokyo, Nov. 14.

M. Viacheslav Molotov, Russian Foreign Commissar, outwitted British and American efforts for rapprochement with the Soviet Union by his official visit to Berlin, which is "glaring proof of the success of Axis diplomacy, specially German diplomatic skill," says the leading daily "Chugai Shogyo," according to a semi-official Japanese report.

"Underlying this remarkable diplomatic success," states the paper, "is of course the inevitability and relation of interest in international politics and economy. At the time the Japan-Axis tripartite pact was concluded Britain and America even spread propaganda that the Soviet Union would be obliged to liquidate its pro-German policy because of encirclement by the three powers and resultant sharpening of relations with them.

"But the facts went quite contrary to Anglo-American wishful thinking and the pact very clearly bettered the Soviet international status.

"The present Reich-Soviet talk is said by some to be intended for perfecting Balkan operations while others say it is for the purpose of defining new spheres of influence in Europe, the Near East and Central Asia.

"Anyway it is not hard to imagine that the success of this historic parley will go a long way towards intensification of Axis diplomacy and a phenomenal rise in the Soviet Union's international status. On this occasion, it is urgently necessary for Japan to make full preparations for the coming situation."—Reuter.

Enemy-laid Mine Caused Loss of American Ship

New York, Nov. 14.

The mine that caused the sinking of the American vessel, City of Rayville, was laid by a German sea raider, it was reported here today.

The Bass straits, where the American Freighter City of Rayville was blown up last week, was to have been reopened to shipping this morning. Naval authorities yesterday said the straits would be reopened at daylight on Thursday.

The straits were closed to shipping after the American vessel was blown up, apparently by a mine. Naval authorities are still investigating the explosion.

Mine sweepers began operations in the straits immediately after the freighter was sunk.—United Press.

German Plane Crashes In Switzerland

Berne, Nov. 14.

A German bomber crashed at Villerzell, near Einsiedeln, last night and members of the crew have not yet been found, according to an Army Staff communique.

"A German bomber flew into east Switzerland and crashed near Villerzell in the canton of Schwyz," the communique said. "The members of the crew were not to be found in the plane, which was destroyed completely."

It was not explained whether the communique meant that members of the crew had taken to parachutes and escaped, or whether the wreckage had not yet yielded their remains.—United Press.

Japan-N.E.I. Pact Called Compromise

Only Part of Japanese Desires Satisfied by Oil Agreement

Washington, Nov. 14.

The oil agreement signed yesterday in Batavia represents a compromise rather than a victory for Japan, informed sources said here.

The agreement provided for sale of certain oils and petroleum products to Japanese companies and Dutch and American owned companies in Japan. It was initialed by representatives of the Mitsui interests (Japanese) Royal Dutch Shell and Standard Oil.

The agreement was termed a compromise because Japan had asked for double the amount of oil which she finally obtained, informed sources said.

The pact also was said to be for the limited period of six months and it includes no high octane gasoline, informed sources said.

The Netherlands East Indies Government kept the State Department advised as to the progress of negotiations, informed sources said.—United Press.

Gruesome Discovery in Chinese Hotel

Strangled Woman Found in Bed by Coolie

At about 1.30 p.m. yesterday a Chinese woman, said to be about forty years of age, was found strangled to death in room 32 of Ai Tou Hotel at 261/10 Rue du Weikwei.

The discovery was made by a hotel coolie who had come to ask her whether she intended to remain in the hotel. He found the deceased in bed, with a thin cord tied around her neck, death appearing to have been caused several hours before.

The victim registerd at the hotel under the name of Zeng Ying-zeu several days ago. On Tuesday she was joined by a Chinese man, whose name was given as Zeng Ling-seng and with whom she passed a night in room 22. The couple then took room 32 and were seen together at about 10 p.m. on Wednesday when they were entering the room.

The man left the hotel at midnight on Wednesday and has not been seen since. As soon as the crime was reported to the French Police, detectives started investigating and it was believed that the mystery would be cleared if they could find the man who had disappeared.

THE departments of education in various provinces have been instructed by the Ministry of Education to allot a special fund for the promotion of music courses in all schools, Chungking reports to the "Sin Wan Pao." Students will be taught to become music conductors.

1941 Plymouths on Display Here

New Powermatic Shift Cuts Down Driving Effort; More Appeal Inside and Out

Leading off in the display of 1941 model cars in Shanghai, Messrs. Mark L. Moody, Fed. Inc., U.S.A. is welcoming large numbers of Shanghai motorists at the showroom at Avenue Edward VII and Szechuen Road where the beautiful new 1941 Plymouth cars are being exhibited for the first time.

In commenting on the showing of the new cars Mr. Mark L. Moody said, "It is a great pleasure to celebrate our 20th anniversary in business in Shanghai with the showing of these wonderful new Plymouth cars and brings to mind the contrast between the cars of today and those of 1924 when we imported our first shipment of Chrysler products in May of that year. During the sixteen years we have handled Chrysler products the public, as well as ourselves, have seen and enjoyed remarkable advances in engineering and improvements in appearance and comfort and the 1941 Plymouth is another tremendous advance for the benefit of the motoring public and I am confident that motorists will be quick in recognizing the extraordinary value of the 1941 Plymouth."

Following an expanding policy of "luxury without limit," the 1941 Plymouth makes its debut with new luxury cars filled with new style and comfort features, and new engineering. The latest models introduce scores of quality features and engineering advancements for added comfort and luxury, snappier performance and greater driving ease.

Aggressive pioneering by Chrysler Corporation's great engineering laboratories has produced many radical advances in handling ease, road performance and safety to match new luxury and elegance of appointments beyond anything formerly expected in a low-priced motor car.

Many Valuable Improvements

Brilliant new beauty in design is revealed by every view, inside and out. The big 117-inch wheelbase is standard, with the following highspot features topping the list of Plymouth improvements for 1941. New high-torque Plymouth engine has power stepped up to 88 h.p. and torque increased over the entire speed range. High-duty lifetime bearings of latest design last four times longer than ordinary bearings.

The new get-away gear, which, under normal road conditions, makes it possible to start in second speed for rapid getaway—with third gear in reverse for uphill starts or pulling out of ruts. This is made possible by new transmission and rear axle ratios, combined with added engine power.

The new powermatic gearshift, optional as extra equipment on Plymouth Special DeLuxe gives full advantage of new design by controlling gearshift with the lightest finger flick. Standard manual-type lever on steering post this year also is much easier to operate.

The new safety wheel rim design greatly reduces hazards of blowout or puncutre, by preventing a flat tire from being thrown off wheel even at high speeds. With this new rim a completely flat tire gives the same driving effect as a tire inflated to 10 lb. pressure on the standard-type wheel.

New Grille Design Incorporated

Strength and solidity as well as graceful beauty and extra size are expressed in the appearance of the new Plymouth, which displays new richness in every detail of exterior design. For 1941, the new design links down the car more firmly to its natural element—the road. Body mouldings start at the very base of the new front grille, sweep upward in a curving "V" and flow straight back along the hood and body, all the way to the streamlined rear deck. Here the body lines sweep gracefully back toward the road.

The Base of the "V" in front is the foundation for two ventilating sections at either side, outlined in curves of chrome across the catwalk, with eleven chromium bars contained in each louvre section. Above the grille, where the "V" sweeps around the hood, these diverging curves are joined by three chevrons in chrome, reversing Plymouth's former pattern and creating a more broad-shouldered effect.

The front end is considerably more massive than before. Fenders are higher and broader; a new, larger one-piece hood sweeps farther out in front, and the catwalks curve up to meet the hood at a higher point.

Headlamps are streamlined into the fender contour, but are set slightly higher above the road, and are surmounted by larger parking lights that rise above the fender surface, then sweep backward streamline fashion to merge with the fenders' upper curve. Belt moldings are wider and rounder. Additional sparkle is gained by other chrome moldings around window reveals, now available as extra equipment.

The spare tire and wheel, in sedan models, are carried inside the trunk, which has the same huge luggage capacity as before. The trunk lid moves up or down on counter-balanced hinges so that small effort is required to open or close it—a valuable convenience particularly for the woman driver.

Ewo Cotton Mills Hold Chrysanthemum Show

Over $3,000 Collected to Swell War Funds

A successful Chrysanthemum Show was held by the Ewo Cotton Mills yesterday afternoon, bringing over $3,000 to swell War funds. The show was well attended, although the closure of the district by the Japanese authorities, following the shooting of an officer, held back many who attempted to get there.

The Committee was composed of the following members of the Ewo Cotton Mills: Messrs. E. J. Davies, T. Walmsley, H. Walton and Laycock. The Ladies' Committee was formed by Mrs. Walmsley, Mrs. E. J. Davies, Mrs. Cheetham and Mrs. J. North.

Prizes were distributed for the best flowers, while auctioning of these flowers was later held, with Mr. J. North acting as auctioneer. This, too, brought good results.

Countering the Tientsin Race Club meets races have been held at Tongshan by the local authorities, the Tongshan municipality taking the profits.—Reuter.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

Yesterday's Business

General uncertainty, unconfirmed rumours and firmer exchange all contributed to the weakness of the market yesterday, which, after an easy opening, quickly developed into a wave of selling. Throughout the day there were periods when shorts and new buying brought steadiness, but for the most part nervous holders continued to liquidate. At the close there was a feeling that the drop had been overdone, though the buying was not aggressive. Rubbers suffered with industrials, many of the recently popular shares showing severe declines. A comparison of the closing buying prices of November 13 with that of yesterday is given below:

London Stocks

Wednesday's Closing Quotations

London, Nov. 13.

Industrials on the London Stock Exchange today attracted the main attention and good business was done at higher levels, while Kaffirs, as a whole, made a good showing. Rubber shares were in favour, while home rails advanced on a good enquiry.

Most foreign bonds ruled firm, especially Brazilian issues.—Reuter.

New York Market Steady

New York, Nov. 13.

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange closed higher today following a fairly active session. Bonds eased, wheat firmed and cotton remained unchanged.

Various companies reported higher dividends than expected today. Some issues touched new highs in a year or more as a result of favourable domestic news.

Budd Manufacturing preferred advanced to 70 1/4, up 3 1/2 points, while General Steel Castings preferred was up 6 1/4 points, reaching 62. International Paper preferred advanced more than three points. Copper shares firmed because of high consumption figures.

The outstanding business development of the day was the announcement of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co. that it was undertaking a twenty per cent. expansion programme for the production of ingot.—United Press.

Dow-Jones Summary

By courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

The strength of specials featured an irregular market today which trading slackened although the volume topped a million shares. Not earnings of New York Central were estimated at $5,000,000 for ten months, compared with a net loss of $1,500,000 for the corresponding period of last year. Traders were cheered by higher railway dividends, such as Pennsylvania Railroad $1.00 per share, against the previous $0.50 per share. Attention was being paid by traders to the effect of the Excess Profits Tax, which was noted on a chart, showing that paper, automobile and aircraft accessories, machine tools and aircrafts will probably pay between $0.44 to $0.50.

Net income to the Government. Ten categories are not like to pay anying, including steel, air transport, rubber products, dairy products, rail equipments, telephone, electric light and paper, farm equipments, oil and department stores.

Stocks:—Despite continued nervousness over the results of the Russo-German talks, the market strengthened towards the close in good earnings and business reports, together with reports of British successes against the Italian Mediterranean Fleet.

Corn:—A Government estimate places the crop at 2,433,500,000 bushels, showing an increase of 80,000,000 bushels. This was construed as bearish, but it is expected that the Government loan of $0.61 will encourage holdings.

Rubber:—Renewed uneasiness over the Far Eastern situation was again a market factor, which attracted outside interest. Shipment offers were light and high.

U.S. Not To Acquire Bases in S. America

Aid to Spain Considered, Says Mr. Welles

Washington, Nov. 14.

The United States has not acquired and does not intend to acquire any military bases from any Latin American Republic Mr. Sumner Welles, the Under-Secretary of State, said yesterday.

Mr. Welles indicated, however, that the U.S. might accept invitations to share the use of such bases which are built by the Latin American nations themselves.

Mr. Welles also disclosed that the Government has been studying the possibility of assisting Spain by supplying her with foodstuffs and other materials.

No decisions have been reached regarding aid to Spain, Mr. Welles said, pointing out that the matter was largely one for the American Red Cross to handle.—United Press.

Alleged Foreign Gunman in Court

Additional Charges Filed By Municipal Police; Remanded in Custody

Three additional charges of participation in armed robberies in the Settlement and one of obtaining a typewriter by fraud from 659 Szechuen Road were preferred by the Municipal police yesterday in the First Special District Court against John Lagiaize Loe, unrecognized foreigner and former proof-reader of the "Evening Echo" who was remanded a week ago for being concerned with a Japanese in an armed robbery at 76 Bubbling Well Road. Accused who admitted the charges will appear before the court again tomorrow.

Loe's arrest aroused considerable interest, as this is the first case in many months where a foreigner is involved in an armed robbery. Although a warrant was issued for his arrest it was not executed until ten days later owing to his elusiveness. On one occasion the police called at his office five minutes after he had made a hurried departure.

The additional charges brought against him were as follows: being concerned with a person not subject to the jurisdiction of the court in the commission of an armed robbery at 447 Yu Yuen Road, on October 19, last, and stealing $41.30 in cash; being concerned with the same man in an armed robbery in a Chinese establishment at 128 Honan Road on October 3, and stealing $800 in notes; participation in an armed robbery on October 20, at 337 Kwangse Road when $40 in cash was stolen and obtaining a typewriter by fraud from Mr. G. V. Senna at 659 Szechuen Road on October 29. The value of the machine was given as $750.

In the first robbery it will be recalled the Japanese accomplice was wounded by shots fired by a Chinese constable after an alarm was raised following the commission of the crime. Badly wounded, the Japanese escaped in a rickshaw and crossed the bridge into West Hongkew where his condition deterred his flight and forced him to seek treatment for his wounds in a Chinese hospital. Despite his objections the management informed the West Hongkew police station. He was arrested and taken to a Japanese hospital where he was detained under the surveillance of the authorities while he was being treated.

Judgment Summons in H.M. Supreme Court

Default in Paying Court Costs in Former Action

An order for Sartan Singh, unemployed Sikh watchman, to pay $10 a month from January 1, 1941, to liquidate his costs in a former action which he unsuccessfully brought against Kehar Singh, another Indian, was made by Assistant Judge P. Grant Jones in H.M. Supreme Court yesterday.

Although Sartan Singh was named as plaintiff in the proceedings, he was judgment debtor owing to his default in defraying the costs of his previous action. He was before the court on judgment summons which were adjourned from October 25, for Kehar Singh, judgment creditor, to produce further evidence of his ability to meet the costs forthwith.

Kehar Singh brought two Indian witnesses who stated that they saw Sartan Singh at an address in Point Road housing a Japanese factory. One of the witnesses said he saw Sartan Singh there day and night.

In reply to His Lordship Sartan Singh said he had been unemployed for four months owing to illness and would return to work at the beginning of December at the end of which month, he added, he would be able to pay the instalments of $10 monthly in settlement of his indebtedness.

Sartan Singh suggested that the two witnesses were prevaricating and that they were biased against him.

U.S. Defence Work Ahead of Schedule

Boston, Mass., Nov. 14.

The United States national defence programme is a "full year ahead of schedule," Colonel Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, told reporters yesterday after inspecting the Navy Yard at Boston.

"In 1941 we shall be getting 26 new ships including two battleships and one aircraft carrier," he added.—Reuter.

Five Arrested by Police Yesterday

Robber, Detective Shot in Gun Battles; S.S.M.P. Constable Killed

Five robbers were arrested in the course of the day yesterday when police officers of the Central and Louza stations answered alarm calls as armed robberies were staged by bandits in Nanking and Chekiang Roads.

The first alarm was raised at 5.40 a.m. when three men, two of them reported to have been armed with Mauser pistols, entered room 302 of 380 Nanking Road, and attempted to intimidate the occupants. One of the inmates, however, raised an alarm, forcing the criminals to flee.

In making their getaway the robbers were challenged by nine C.P.C.'s and a gun-battle was staged near the corner of Kiukiang and Shantung Roads, resulting in the wounding of one robber and a rickshaw puller. Prior to the shooting, the robbers were ordered to stop, but refused to do so. The police constables then opened fire and the robbers returned shot for shot, until one of them was hit by a C.P.C. shooting from behind a pole.

The wounded bandit was taken to the Police Hospital, suffering from severe wounds in his chest, while the rickshaw coolie was sent to the Lester Chinese Hospital.

One Mauser pistol and 21 rounds of ammunition were seized by the Police from the wounded robber.

Other Arrests

The other four robbers were arrested at the corner of Amoy and Chekiang Roads by police officers of the Louza Station when a general alarm was sounded at the station following an attempted armed robbery at 12.25 p.m. at 18 Ong Tuh Li off Chekiang Road.

A police party turned out at the scene of the crime under Chief Inspector J. A. McFarlane and after a short chase managed to arrest four of the six men, who had taken part in the robbery. In the course of the chase, one of the Chinese members accidentally fired a shot, wounding Chinese detective No. 75 in the left thigh. The wounded detective was taken to the Police Hospital in an S.F.B. emergency ambulance.

Another shooting, in Kewsick Road, at about 8 a.m. yesterday cost the life of a Chinese policeman of the Special Municipality Police, when he attempted to detain a gang of armed robbers.

The armed robbers, three in number, had just robbed a Chinese pedestrian in Kinnear Road, and the victim reported the crime to the Chinese police substation.

Accompanied by the victim, the Chinese policeman located the criminals in Keswick Road and ordered them to stop, but the three men opened fire on him. The constable fell dead, while the robbers escaped from the scene.

S.M.C. Orchestra To Vary Concerts

Augmentation of Stringed Instruments Instead of Soloist Scores

The unbalanced strength of various orchestral groups of the Municipal orchestra which have been the subject of criticisms levelled in the past against the orchestra will be remedied in the coming winter season when a number of extra musicians will on occasion be engaged to augment the orchestra, particularly the number of string instruments. This was announced in a press communiqué made by the Council yesterday.

The announcement stated that there would be a departure from the regular programme of including a soloist to enhance the interest of the performance. While the pros and cons of this new arrangement may be the subject of controversy among musical critics, there is no denying the fact that the soloist programmes have been introduced too often. In the sphere of music the adage that there is spice in variety holds more true than in any of the other arts. The announcement made by the Council yesterday follows:—

Extra Musicians

An interesting feature in the arranging of the programmes this season by Maestro Paci is that instead of the engagement of a soloist to enhance the interest of the programme, a number of extra musicians will on occasion be engaged to augment the strength of the Orchestra, particularly the number of string instruments. It is considered that this arrangement will remedy the complaint sometimes heard regarding the unbalanced strength of the various orchestral groups.

For the 6th Symphony Concert of the Season on Sunday, November 17, the Municipal Orchestra will appear in augmented strength, and instead of the usual 47 musicians, 62 musicians will be heard on the stage of the Lyceum Theatre. On this special occasion the Conductor has chosen a programme that should meet every musical taste, since it contains three very familiar "chef-d'oeuvres" of Symphonic literature viz. the famous Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner, the immortal 5th Symphony (in C) by Beethoven and, after the interval, the picturesque suite "Sheherazade" by Rimsky-Korsakow.

The 38 strings (instead of the usual 27) will undoubtedly balance the heavy and polyphonic orchestration in the "Meistersinger" and lend invaluable assistance in the string music of Beethoven's 5th Symphony, while the sparkling orchestral colours of "Sheherazade" will be adequately expressed by the strengthened Orchestra. The concert will start as usual at 5.15 p.m. and admission prices remain unchanged.

More Help From Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 14.

A strong plea that Canada should send more men to theatres of war where the conflict would be decided instead of keeping them at home was made by Mr. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Senate, on Wednesday.

He said there would be no danger of attack on Canada unless Britain fell, hence Canada should do her utmost to help Britain win by intensifying and speeding up her war effort.—Reuter.

Special Memorial Service

High tribute was paid to the late Mr. Gibb at the special memorial service held yesterday by the China Inland Mission. Mr. R. H. Mathews, who offered the first eulogy, said that he had known Mr. Gibb for over 25 years, and in all that time he had always received the impression that his life was devoted to his duty, his resolute purpose and unflagging zeal carrying the work of the Mission to many Chinese in the interior. He was of determined character, and was a tremendously hard worker, no personal inconvenience preventing him from performing his duties. He took a great interest in educational work, continued Mr. Mathew, starting a school in his province, which he kept going despite the hard and unresponsive attitude of the people in the district.

Mr. D. E. Hoste, former general director of the Mission, spoke of Mr. Gibb's extraordinary energy and courage. He had the gift of being able to appreciate workers of widely different types, and was able to make the best of things. He set a fine example to many, and to his discrimination and patience many must owe a great deal, said Mr. Hoste. His sympathy was wide, and he overcame his prejudices in dealing with men of different types. "As a colleague he was priceless," said Mr. Hoste, "responding magnificently to hard work. He never needlessly mentioned the faults of workers, whom he treated with understanding."

It takes no little endeavour to get a job nowadays. Ability, fitness, references and advertising. A couple of well-worded classified ads may do more for you than any other method.

crossing the road asked the policeman whether she would get a shock if she put her foot on the tram rail. "You will indeed, ma'am", he replied, "if at the same time you put the other foot on the wire overhead". When you wake up in hospital the shock is very greatly eased if you hold a Personal Accident Policy.
